1. LIST IT OUT

It can be hard to imagine achieving your dream. But a good way to start can be by making a list of action steps. Use the spaces below to outline possible steps toward achieving your dream (don't worry about putting them in order for now). Along with each step, think about what will be needed to take that step (resources, knowledge, prior steps, etc.) and list them out.

2. BREAK IT DOWN

Now that you've defined the steps that your dream will require, it's time to figure out what to do first. It can be helpful to break a big dream down into smaller, more tactical parts to bridge the gaps between the actions you've identified and your dream. Try breaking down your dream into milestones. This can be phases (like planning, testing, implementing), an overall percentage complete, or deliverables like creating a marketing plan, rough draft, or a prototype.

RISKS & ROADBLOCKS

Dreaming can be risky, and sometimes you hit roadblocks. It's all part of the process! And it's important to take them in stride. Think about your dream and your milestones, and determine how you might counteract any obstacles in your path. List these below.

IT'S OK TO TAKE A BREAK

You may want to achieve your dream as fast as humanly possible, but that's just not realistic. Dreams take a lot of time and hard work. So, when you're making your schedule, remember to work in time for yourself and your loved ones. It's all about managing your time, money, and energy wisely, so use the space below to list out times or upcoming events during which you know you'll not be available to pursue this plan — and stick to it.
