The Therapeutic Effect of Nature

Modern medicine is reverting back to ancient concepts to improve the outcomes and well-being of patients and families by recognizing the therapeutic effect of nature on healing. The incorporation of nature into both the interior and exterior design of the Armes Family Cancer Care Center recognizes the calming effect that natural settings can have on patients and families in crisis. Elements of nature when applied to both interior and exterior environments elicit documented improvement in patient and staff well-being, patient healing, stress reduction and safety.

Within the interior of the Armes Family Cancer Care Center many subtle references to nature will be incorporated into not only the artwork and decorative features, but also into the basic construction elements including interior glass, doors, wall paper and wood trim. In addition, large windows, which bring the outside in, will be prevalent in all areas of the building allowing enjoyment of the outdoor space from indoors, making the landscape part of the interior scene as well.

One of the most dramatic influences regarding the therapeutic effect of nature on positive patient outcomes is the healing garden. The research of Roger Ulrich, Rachel Kaplan, Steve Kaplan and several others indicates that viewing nature may reduce the amount of time and pain medications a patient uses to recover from certain medical treatments. In 2001 The Joint Commission for the first time recognized therapeutic gardens as exemplary, and as a best practice benchmark for health care organizations. This was an important step in linking therapeutic gardens with positive patient outcomes and staff satisfaction.

When completed, the Virginia B. Gardner Healing Garden at the Armes Family Cancer Care Center will be strategically placed to be in full view of patients receiving infusion therapy, and careful landscape design has assured that the garden view will be both interesting and beautiful no matter the season. Plant selection and tree placement by a professional landscape architect will provide year round changing views of nature in all its glory for patients to contemplate and to focus on an oasis of peace in the midst of difficult times and treatment. Strategically placed lighting will lend a special ambiance to the nature garden. The garden will also serve as a respite destination for both patients and families to wander down a winding, wheelchair accessible path next to a dry bed, rest on conveniently placed benches offering a sense of privacy, or delight in viewing the John and Mary DeHaven Healing Tree sculpture.

ARMES FAMILY CANCER CARE CENTER CAMPAIGN UPDATE

Thanks to an overwhelming response from our "Friends and Family" Capital Campaign which included BVHS and BVHF Board members, BVH associates, the Auxiliary, physicians and medical professionals, we are pleased to announce that more than $2 million in philanthropy was raised to break ground on November 14, 2014.

However, victory over cancer cannot happen with bricks and mortar alone. The next challenge is to fill this building with the finest technology and programming to treat, heal, comfort and cure our community. Our Phase Two goal is to raise $2.5 million in philanthropy for immediate use and endowment. Immediate use includes technology and program support. Endowment, which is directed by a spending policy of 5 percent annually, will ensure ongoing support.

Donor Wall Update

Blanchard Valley Health Foundation has always envisioned the Armes Family Cancer Care Center donor wall as much more than a list of names. We wanted a symbol of the true nature of this facility, a healing environment for the whole patient provided through a team of doctors, nurses, BVHS support staff, family, friends and others focused on the patient's tomorrows. To that end, we enlisted the assistance of retired physician and accomplished wood carver, Dr. Emil Zeigler. His artistic vision will be the focal point of the donor recognition.

Emil Zeigler, MD
Artist

Dr. Zeigler's vision includes carving a 36-inch diameter medallion which will be incorporated into a 13.5-foot long, multicolored Corian donor wall to be located in the Armes Family Cancer Care Center waiting area. The center of the medallion represents the mind, body and spirit of the patient who is the center of care.

Surrounding the patient is a circle of triangles representing information sharing from the patient to the entire support team. The team's strength and support are symbolized in a series of interlocking circles which include lotus leaves depicting the power of healing. These leaves also resemble panes of a cathedral window recognizing religion as part of the healing process.

Leaves of the tree of life join the lotus leaves along with stylized books representing the research and knowledge of the doctors and nurses. The solid areas within the circles illustrate solid support and the diamonds financial support provided to patients in addition to healing support.

"Your team... for your tomorrows," the vision for the Armes Family Cancer Care Center, surrounds these interlocking circles of strength and is joined together by an eternal knot representing ongoing support provided by the patient's entire team. Fans and diamonds representing financial support, research and knowledge of the team are repeated around the periphery. Enclosing the entire circle of support are touching, stylized hands. Finally, a scalloped edge stresses the individuality, uniqueness and importance of each patient.

This meaningful symbol will rest upon the larger wall piece referencing the entire team of donors whose generous gifts made the expansion and renovation project of the Armes Family Cancer Care Center a reality. Donations of $5,000 or more will be recognized on individually-engraved tiles incorporated into the donor wall. To ensure your name is represented on the wall for the grand opening, pledges must be received by June 1, 2015. To make a pledge, contact the Blanchard Valley Health Foundation at 419-423-5457.

Honor a Valiant Survivor

Imagine a tall, sparkling, silver tree reflecting sunlight, shining and beckoning to those who are in need of comfort. The John and Mary DeHaven Healing Tree will be a focal point of the John and Mary DeHaven Courtyard located at the end of a winding wheelchair accessible path in the Virginia B. Gardner Healing Garden at the Armes Family Cancer Care Center. The colorful garden will be in full view of patients receiving infusion therapy and an important focus of the Armes Family Cancer Care Center environment. The professional landscape design will provide year round changing views of nature in all its glory.

Joe and Diana Kirk have donated the materials and Findlay Machine and Tool (FMT), a Kirk Family Company, will provide the fabrication of the impressive stainless-steel tree standing over fourteen feet tall. It will be mounted above a circular seating area designed as a respite destination for patients, families and visitors. Stainless-steel leaves on the tree may be purchased for a minimum of $500 to honor or memorialize a loved one. Donors will receive one laser cut, stainless steel maple leaf to be placed on the tree during the annual September ceremony and a matching leaf as a personal keepsake.

Purchase of a maple leaf will support the Armes Family Cancer Care Center Endowment Fund. These funds will ensure the facility sustains the technology and programming to continue to provide the best possible care to patients in our community.

Planning Your Legacy

Every year, nearly 70 percent of Americans who die do so without having prepared a valid last will and testament. This statistic is especially astounding since state and federal laws provide some significant incentives for the preparation of a will. These incentives are designed to make it easy for very personal wishes to be known and followed - wishes that deal with child custody, property distribution and a legacy of values. A carefully planned will serves to actually minimize costs related to settling an estate.

FOUR REASONS AMERICANS AVOID PREPARING A WILL

1. TOO LITTLE PROPERTY TO MERIT A WILL

The truth is that every day many people die possessing much more than they realize. What may be a modest home today, a small investment portfolio or just the beginning of a savings account, can enjoy significant growth in value before death. Where no will exists, the state will determine distribution.

2. LIFE GETS IN THE WAY

For some, it is simply the day-to-day routine that prohibits them from considering a will. For others, it is the reality that no one plans to die, or certainly no one enjoys planning to die. For another group, it may be rationalized under the “no one can know the future” reason, thinking that so much could change between today and the time of death. What good could it do to plan today?

3. A WILL IS COSTLY

A few hundred dollars or more pale in comparison to the cost of having no will at all. Without a will an estate may face the maximum in applicable probate costs and taxes. In the event of any family disagreement over distribution, legal costs skyrocket. Having a will could even save you and your family money.

4. DISTASTE FOR LEGAL DOCUMENTS

A will is easily understood, however, when compared to the legal intricacies that an estate without a will may experience. Attorneys will gladly provide an easy-to-understand summary of the contents of a will to ensure your objectives are met.

TESTIMONIAL:

One of our very own BVHS associates with more than 54 years of service has seen the value in wills planning.

SHE SAID:

“My husband passed in April 2013 and had already taken care of estate planning before his death. What a blessing it was that I did not have so many things to take care of on my own. I met with my own attorney recently to discuss my will preparation and powers of attorney. The attorney fees I paid were minimal—and I consider his advice and services a real bargain. Thank you for providing the BVHF Wills Planning Guide to me. Hopefully many others will follow up and take care of the inevitable.”
