Improving Patient Experience of Care

---

The Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) developed the Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems (CAHPS) surveys to advance the scientific understanding of patient experience with healthcare access and quality. CMS uses CAHPS as the core of its Medicare Advantage and Qualified Health Plan patient experience surveys.

The surveys ask patients to report on their experience with a range of healthcare services at multiple levels of the delivery system. They include questions about patients' experience with their providers and about care received for specific conditions. They also ask about enrollees' experience with their health plans and related programs. Survey topics include:

- Access to care
- How well physicians communicate
- Shared decision making
- Health promotion and education
- Coordination of care
- HEDIS measures (flu shots, tobacco cessation)
- Customer service
- Claim processing
- Plan administration and information on costs
- Ratings of healthcare, physicians, specialists, and health plans
- Cultural competence

Expectations for providers

- Become familiar with patient experience survey questions relevant to providers (see sample questions on the next page).
- Implement protocols and practices that support a positive patient experience, as defined by the survey questions about access to care, coordination of care, and customer service.
- Continue improvement in physician-patient communication.
- Engage patients in the process of shared decision making to encourage them to take ownership of their health and treatment plans.
