Let's face it. You love the incredibly fun and totally intuitive TiVo experience. Don't even fight it—I mean, come on, nothing else even comes close. Well, now it's more out-of-the-box than ever with this: the amazingly small but incredibly powerful TiVo Stream. Just plug this little guy into your wireless router and it unleashes the TiVo experience. Stream does just what it sounds like—it streams your favorite shows to any tablet or smartphone connected to your home network, all with the easy experience you've come to expect from TiVo.

For your TV with the TiVo Stream, up to four family members can watch their favorite shows in total peace. Dad can watch the game while relaxing in the backyard. Little Janie can watch her SpongeBob where it won't drive everyone else crazy. Mom can watch her cooking shows where she actually cooks, and everybody's happy.

Now that I teased you with that taste of freedom, the TiVo Stream has one more trick up its sleeves—if it had sleeves. The Stream can transfer your favorite shows to a tablet or smartphone, and you can take your favorite shows with you when you're on the go. The kids can watch their favorite shows as you drive over the river and through the woods to Grandma's house, and you can enjoy yours on a plane or even at the DMV.

Stream can download a one-hour show in about 15 minutes, so it's fast and easy to turn your favorite shows into road shows. It's a great way to maximize your cable subscription. Best of all, TiVo Stream is controlled with this simple, easy-to-use app, which can be downloaded for free. And look what just happened—the best things on TV don't have to be watched on TV.
