Fund description and commentary

The fund invests into a global portfolio of alternative investment asset classes and strategies and seeks to achieve long term capital growth. Investments are made by selecting both internal investment strategies and external managers, co-investing with the LGT Group Endowment into the same underlying portfolios. Currency risks are hedged to the reference currency.

In March 2025, the LGT Multi-Alternatives Australia Fund returned 0.12%. Insurance-linked strategies, private credit and infrastructure produced positive returns. Private equity was flat while hedge funds lost value. For non-US dollar share classes, the weakening of the American currency detracted from this month's performance.

Insurance-linked strategies gains were driven by continued elevated reinsurance premia and collateral yield, while catastrophe event activity was subdued. There is still uncertainty around the loss reserves for the wildfires in Los Angeles, California. While there was a slight reduction in premium levels for new contracts, they remain historically attractive.

2025 started strong for private credit, with a rally across loans and CLO's. However, March brought increased volatility from global macro events, leading to a modest pullback in loans, showing resilience compared to equity and high yield bond markets. A notable transaction closed this month involved the opportunity to co-invest in a market leader in the UK D2C market, providing retail investors with an extensive platform to manage ISAs, pensions, savings and investments.

The hedge fund portfolio posted a negative return due to losses from discretionary hedge funds, while systematic hedge funds offset some of the losses and the internal risk premia investment strategy was flat. Within discretionary strategies losses were driven by sector-focused long/short equity managers across technology, financials, energy, and healthcare.

Risks

Market risks: The risk of losses in an investment arising from adverse movements in market prices.

Liquidity risks: Liquidity risk in semi-liquid funds with exposure to private markets means that these funds may face challenges when trying to convert their assets into cash. This can impact the fund's ability to meet investor redemption requests. Redemptions from this fund are restricted to 5% of net asset value in a calendar quarter. During periods of financial stress or high redemption demand, no assurances can be provided as to the ability of investors to redeem their shares at any given time.

Operational risks: The risk of the Fund incurring losses as a result of inadequate or failed processes, people or systems failures, or from external or force majeure events.

Political and legal risks: The risk of change in rules and standards applied in the jurisdiction of an asset of the Fund. This includes restrictions on currency convertibility, the imposition of taxes or transaction controls, limitations on property rights or other legal risks. Investments in less developed financial markets may expose the Fund to increased operational, legal and political risk.

Credit / counterparty risks: The risk that a counterparty fails to meet contractual financial obligations on a timely basis.

Currency risks: The risk of losses arising from currency fluctuations, in case the currency of an asset is different from the Fund and/or investor's investment currency.

Master-Feeder risks: The performance of the Fund may deviate from the performance of the Master-Fund.
