

Liontrust UK Growth Fund

April 2023 review

Fund managers: Anthony Cross and Julian Fosh

The Liontrust UK Growth Fund returned 2.2%* in April. The FTSE All-Share Index comparator benchmark returned 3.4% and the average return in the IA UK All Companies sector, also a comparator benchmark, was 2.5%.

Stockmarkets continued their recovery from March's banking crisis, despite signs that confidence in US-based First Republic Bank had plummeted to levels that led to its collapse. Investors seemed content that systemic problems had been side-stepped through the swift action of regulators in the US and Europe. There was also increasing consensus around the view that the resulting tightening of lending conditions could stymie economic activity sufficiently to remove the need for many more central bank rate hikes.

Within the Fund, one of April's largest risers was pharmaceutical group Indivior (+10%). Having retraced some of their gains in February following a Q4 2022 update, Indivior shares resumed their upward trajectory after the company commented on Q1 conditions. Once again there was evidence of very strong growth for its Sublocade opioid addiction treatment – up 55% year-on-year. The drug now accounts for over half of Indivior's sales, and its rapid growth in recent years has compensated for a decline in sales for its Suboxone film, which has been vulnerable to generic competition since 2018. Indivior upgraded its 2023 net revenue forecast range from $950m - $1,020m to $970m - $1,040m because the launch of a fourth generic competitor to Suboxone in the US market is now expected to be delayed to later in the year.

John Wood Group (+13%) also rose strongly. The provider of consulting and engineering services to the energy and materials sectors has received several takeover proposals from private equity group Apollo this year. After rejecting the first four, it received a fifth and final cash proposal of 240p per share in April, an offer which prompted John Wood Group's board of directors to enter discussions; under the Takeover Code, a firm offer or withdrawal of interest is currently required by 17 May.

Also updating on Q1, Reckitt Benckiser (+6.3%) recorded like-for-like net revenue growth of 7.9%. With inflation still running at very high levels, the household products group successfully boosted revenues by 12 percentage points through price increases, which was partially countered by a smaller negative volume effect of 4.5%. Due to this strong start to the year, Reckitt upgraded its full-year like-for-like net revenue growth target to between 3% and 5%.

Consumer goods peer Unilever (+5.9%) is another to have driven sales through price increases. Its 10.7 percentage points of price hikes only resulted in a 0.2 percentage point negative volume effect, with Q1 underlying sales growth netting out at 10.5%. We believe that the intangible asset strengths which the Economic Advantage investment process explicitly seeks out should confer better than average pricing power upon the holdings in the Fund; these strong pricing updates from the consumer goods giants are welcome evidence of that pricing power coming through.

RWS Holdings (-15%) had already weakened in February after an AGM update warned that higher growth would be needed in the second six-months of the year in order to achieve full-year forecasts. It then downgraded this guidance within an interim trading statement after reduced levels of activity persisted. Compared with consensus analyst expectations of £133m, it now expects full-year profit before tax of closer to £128m. The intellectual property support services provider commented that certain clients have displayed slower decision making and softer activity levels. It is cutting some cost in reflection of these trends, but is also on the look-out for acquisitions that could accelerate its growth plans.

Renishaw (-12%) slid at the start of April after a research analyst initiated coverage of the stock with an underperform rating due to concerns over the near-term health of its end-markets, particularly the electronics and semiconductor sectors. The company confirmed some of these worries in a quarterly trading update which downgraded its full-year guidance. The specialist in high-tech precision measuring and calibration equipment now expects revenue of £680m to £700m (versus £690m to £730m previously) as subdued market conditions continue.

Overall, while there have inevitably been individual instances of stocks disappointing on short term earnings, we have been very encouraged by the trading resilience of the companies in the Fund, despite the wider macro economic challenges. By the end of April, over 60% of the Fund's holdings have reported an 'in line' set of numbers during the year to date, and, of the remaining companies, the prevalence of upgrades has been notably higher than downgrades.

Positive contributors included:

John Wood Group (+13%), Indivior (+10%), Shell (+6.2%), Reckitt Benckiser (+6.3%) and Coats Group (+8.0%).

Negative contributors included:

RWS Holdings (-15%), Renishaw (-12%), YouGov (-6.6%), Spirax-Sarco Engineering (-5.6%) and Paypoint (-3.4%).
