

College of ARTS and LETTERS

Wendy K. Wilkins, DEAN

Students in the College of Arts and Letters explore human expression, human experience, and human values through a wide variety of disciplinary subjects, as well as through interdisciplinary study.

The College consists of the departments of American Thought and Language; Art; English; History; Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages; the departments of Philosophy; Religious Studies; Romance and Classical Languages; and Theatre; the School of Music; and the Center for Integrative Studies in the Arts and Humanities.

Through its academic units, the College of Arts and Letters provides opportunities for students to develop skills that will not only lead to a degree, but will also serve graduates for a lifetime. Students learn to think independently and engage in active inquiry; they learn to ask questions and to pursue new ways of integrating multiple kinds of knowledge. In the process, they gain self-knowledge and strengthen their understanding of their role as citizens of a global community.

Students in the College of Arts and Letters become the kind of creative problem-solvers that professional schools and employers actively seek, because these graduates have the capacity to continue to learn and contribute creatively long after graduation.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

The College of Arts and Letters offers programs leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, and Bachelor of Music. Two kinds of majors lead to degrees: departmental and interdepartmental.

A departmental major, except for certain programs in art, music, theatre, and foreign languages, consists of between 30 and 40 credits in courses stipulated by the departments or school as counting toward the major. In general, a departmental major offers the opportunity to develop habits of thought and methods of study associated with a single scholarly discipline. The specific course and credit requirements for majors are explained in the sections of this catalog devoted to individual academic units. The departmental major is supplemented by additional study in cognate areas. Through these areas, the rigorous concentration in the field of the departmental major is combined with a thorough understanding of the relationships between that field and others of related intellectual importance.

An interdepartmental major consists of not fewer than 50 nor more than 68 credits in courses recognized by the College as counting toward the major. The interdepartmental major is especially appropriate for students who are interested in concentrating on several fields of study. Course and credit requirements are described later in this section under the heading Interdepartmental and Interdisciplinary Programs.

It is the student's obligation to learn the University, College, and departmental, school or program degree requirements. The College, departments or school, or programs will provide academic advice and other assistance, but the final responsibility for meeting the requirements must rest with the student.

Admission as a Freshman

Students meeting the general requirements for admission to the University shown in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog may enroll with a major preference in the College of Arts and Letters and be assigned an academic adviser from the College. During the freshman and sophomore years, students are enrolled in the Undergraduate University Division and normally complete most of the University requirements.

Admission as a Junior to the College of Arts and Letters

1. Completion of at least 56 credits acceptable to the College.
2. An academic record in all work accepted by the College which meets the requirements of Academic Standing of Undergraduate Students.
3. Acceptance as a major by a department, school, or interdepartmental program in the College.

In order for a student to complete a degree program within two years after admission to the College as a junior, a minimum of 60 credits including some of the program requirements should have been earned during the freshman and sophomore years.

Graduation Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in the College of Arts and Letters

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of the catalog.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree that are listed below:
 - a. Courses used to satisfy the University Integrative Studies requirement cannot be counted in the fulfillment of any other requirement.
 - b. The specific requirements, including a capstone experience, of a major leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree in the College.
 - c. Second-year competency in a foreign language. This requirement may be satisfied by placing into a 300-level foreign language course based on a MSU placement test.
 - d. Cognate requirement:

Students must complete two cognates of 12 credits each. Both the cognates and the related courses must be approved by the department or school of the student's major.

 - (1) The courses in each cognate shall be in a single discipline or thematic area.
 - (2) At least one of the cognates must be in a field outside the College of Arts and Letters.
 - (3) One 300 or 400 level course of at least 3 credits must be included in one of the cognates.
 - (4) Courses at the 300–400 level in the same language that was used to satisfy the College's foreign language requirement, or courses at the 100–200 level in another foreign language, may be counted toward this requirement.

For students who are seeking a teaching certificate, an approved teaching minor may be substituted for the two cognates with the approval of the student's academic adviser.

The two cognates are not required for the Bachelor of Arts degree with an interdepartmental or interdisciplinary major in the College.

- e. Credit requirement.
 - (1) For students with a department or school major leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree:
 - (a) At least 30 credits in courses at the 300 level and above.
 - (b) At least 30, but not more than 40, credits in courses in the major that count toward the degree with the following exceptions. For example, a student with a major in German must earn at least 30, but not more than 40, credits in German courses.
 - (i) A student with a major in Theatre may earn a maximum of 50 credits in Theatre courses.
 - (ii) A student with a major in a foreign language may earn a maximum of 40 credits in courses above the 100 level in that language.
 - (iii) A student with a major in Music may earn a maximum of 54 credits in Music courses including credits in 100–200 level courses in music performance and ensemble and 100 level courses in music theory.
 - (iv) A student who combines a major in East Asian Languages and Cultures with a major in another field is required to earn a minimum of 28 credits in Asian Languages, Chinese, and Japanese courses.
 - (v) A student who combines a major in German with a major in another field is required to earn a minimum of 26 credits in German courses.
 - (vi) A student who combines a major in Russian with a major in another field is required to earn a minimum of 26 credits in Russian courses.
 - (c) A minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in courses in the major that count toward the degree. For example, a student with a major in German must earn a minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in the German courses that count toward the degree.
 - (2) For students with an interdepartmental or interdisciplinary major leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree:
 - (a) At least 30 credits in courses at the 300 level and above.
 - (b) At least 50, but not more than 68, credits in courses in the major that count toward the degree. For example, a student with a major in American Studies must earn at least 50, but not more than 68, credits in courses related to American Studies.
 - (c) A minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in courses in the major that count toward the degree. For example, a student with a major in American Studies must earn a minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in the courses related to American Studies that count toward the degree.

Graduation Requirements for the Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree in the College of Arts and Letters

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of the catalog.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree that are listed below:
 - a. Courses used to satisfy the University Integrative Studies requirement cannot be counted in the fulfillment of any other requirement.
 - b. The specific requirements, including a capstone experience, of a major leading to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in the Department of Art and Art History.
 - c. Credit requirement.
 - (1) At least 30 credits in courses at the 300 level and above.
 - d. A minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in courses in the major that count toward the degree. For example, a student with a major in Studio Art must earn a minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in the Studio Art courses that count toward the degree.

Graduation Requirements for the Bachelor of Music Degree in the College of Arts and Letters

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of the catalog.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Music degree that are listed below:
 - a. Courses used to satisfy the University Integrative Studies requirement cannot be counted in the fulfillment of any other requirement.
 - b. The specific requirements, including a capstone experience, of a major leading to the Bachelor of Music degree in the School of Music.
 - c. Credit requirement.
 - (1) At least 30 credits in courses at the 300 level and above.
 - d. A minimum grade–point average of 2.00 in all of the Music courses that count toward the degree.

Honors Study

The College of Arts and Letters encourages honors students to develop distinctive undergraduate programs in the fields offered by the departments and school. A member of the faculty is especially selected to serve as adviser to Honors College students in each major field; and it is the adviser's responsibility to help the student plan a rigorous and balanced program which will also reflect the student's special interests and competencies.

The departments and school of the College offer honors courses and seminars at both introductory and advanced levels, chiefly, but not exclusively, for members of the Honors College. The College also offers an opportunity for independent study for Honors College students whose interests reach beyond the topics ordinarily covered by the College honors program. This program consists of three components:

1. Courses taken within the departments and school of the College to satisfy the Arts and Humanities component of the University's Integrative Studies requirement.
2. The one–semester course AL 390H.

3. A Senior Honors Thesis/Project completed under the direction of a supervising faculty member within the department or school of the student's major.

An Honors Option is possible for many of the courses in the College through prior arrangement between student and instructor. Such agreements permit the student to earn Honors credit for specialized study beyond the usual requirements of the course.

Preprofessional Programs

Since the admission requirements to professional programs vary among post-baccalaureate professional schools, it is not feasible to establish a single program for each profession that satisfies the admission requirements of all such schools. However, within the College of Arts and Letters students may select a program of study that meets the admission requirements of the post-baccalaureate professional college of their choice. With early advising and careful planning, the student can design a course of study within the Interdisciplinary Humanities program which will satisfy the requirements for the medical, veterinary, business, or other post-baccalaureate college of choice. In addition, the College of Arts and Letters does have a suggested program of study in Humanities-Prelaw which will satisfy the admission requirements of most professional law schools. It is the responsibility of the student to determine whether or not the proposed program meets the entrance requirements of a chosen professional college. For details, consult the Program in Interdisciplinary Humanities and the Humanities-Prelaw Program sections.

CENTER for INTEGRATIVE STUDIES in ARTS and HUMANITIES

Kenneth Waltzer, Director

Integrative Studies is Michigan State University's unique approach to liberal general education, offering a core curriculum that complements specialized work by students in their majors. Integrative Studies courses integrate multiple ways of knowing and modes of inquiry and introduce students to important ways of thinking in the three core knowledge areas: the Arts and Humanities, the Biological and Physical Sciences, and the Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences. They assist students early during their study to develop as more critical thinkers. They also encourage appreciation of our humanity and creativity, human cultural diversity, the power of knowledge, and our responsibilities for ourselves and for our world.

Courses in Michigan State University's Integrative Studies Program are aimed at developing intellectual abilities, including critical thinking and interpretive skills. They help increase knowledge about other times, places, and cultures, key ideas and issues in human experience, and the scientific method and its usefulness in understanding the natural and social worlds. They are expected to enhance appreciation of the role of knowledge, and of values and ethics, in understanding human behavior and solving social problems. Finally, they help students recognize responsibilities and opportunities associated with democratic citizenship and with living in an increasingly interconnected, interdependent world.

INTERDEPARTMENTAL AND INTERDISCIPLINARY PROGRAMS

These programs are intended primarily for students whose principal interest is in a broad liberal education, as well as those who are interested in preprofessional preparation for careers in areas such as business or medicine. Programs are given in American Studies, Ancient Studies, Humanities Pre–Law and Interdisciplinary Humanities.

PROGRAM IN AMERICAN STUDIES

Peter Levine, Chairperson

The Bachelor of Arts degree program in American Studies is an interdisciplinary program with concentration in American literature, American history, and a third related discipline or thematic unit (see item 3.a.(5) below).

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in American Studies

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in American Studies.
 The University's Tier II writing requirement for the American Studies major is met by completing History 480. That course is referenced in item 3.a.(3) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree, with the exception of the College's cognate requirement.
3. The following requirements for the major:

(4) Two courses emphasizing a culture other than that of the United States (6 to 8 credits). [Foreign language courses at the 300–400 level may be counted toward this requirement.]
(5) Four courses in one of the following areas, or in another area (12 to 16 credits). Both the area and the related courses must be approved by the student's academic adviser. Canadian Studies Cultural Studies Film Studies Political Science Racial and Ethnic Studies Religious Studies Science and Technology Studies Urban and Metropolitan Studies Women's Studies
(6) A capstone experience involving an internship, field study, a senior thesis, or overseas study approved by the student's academic adviser.

PROGRAM IN ANCIENT STUDIES

Paul W. Deussen, Director

The Bachelor of Arts degree program in ancient studies offers interdepartmental, interdisciplinary study of the classical civilizations of Greco–Roman antiquity. Students are given a comprehensive overview of the archaeology, art, history, languages, literatures, mythology, religion and philosophy of the ancient world. The program provides an excellent foundation for subsequent study in professions such as business, education, law, library or museum science, medicine, and theology. It also offers preparation for graduate work in classical philosophy, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, and ancient philosophy. Students seeking certification for teaching Latin should consider the Latin major offered by the Department of Romance and Classical Languages.

Students are required to identify an area of concentration from among the following: Ancient Art and Archaeology, Greek and Latin Language and Literature, Ancient history, or Ancient philosophy. The student's course of study must be reviewed and approved by the Director of the Ancient Studies program.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Ancient Studies

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Ancient Studies.
 The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Ancient Studies major is met by completing one of the following two options:
 - a. History 481.
 - b. English 426A and one of the following courses: Classical Studies 420; History of Art 401, 402, 410, 415; History 419; Philosophy 410.
 Those courses are referenced in items 3.b., 3.d., and 3.e below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree, with the exception of the College's cognate requirement.
 The completion of the requirement referenced in 3. a. below may also be used to satisfy the College's requirement of second–year competency in a foreign language.
3. The following courses related to Ancient Studies:

- f. One of the following four areas of concentration: Ancient Art and Archaeology, Greek and Latin Language and Literature, Ancient History, or Ancient Philosophy. Both the area and the related courses must be approved by the student's academic adviser. 6 or 15
- For students who elect the Ancient Art and Archaeology, Ancient History, or Ancient Philosophy area, a minimum of two courses in the area in addition to the related courses listed above are required.
- For students who elect the Greek and Latin Language and Literature area, a minimum of five courses in the area in addition to the related courses listed above are required. At least one of the five courses must be at the 400 level.
- g. A capstone experience approved by the student's academic adviser. This requirement may be satisfied by completing an internship, a senior seminar, overseas study, an archaeological field experience, or a senior thesis.
- h. Ancient Studies electives: Additional credits in courses related to Ancient Studies as needed to meet the requirement of at least 50, but not more than 68, credits in courses in the major.

PROGRAM IN INTERDISCIPLINARY HUMANITIES

Patricia R. Paulsell, Director

The Interdisciplinary Humanities major is ideal for students who seek a broad liberal education with an emphasis on the disciplines represented by the departments and school of the College of Arts and Letters. It offers study in several fields of knowledge which have a close intellectual relationship and illuminate each other.

The Interdisciplinary Humanities program is a good choice for students planning to study the law or general business. Many students also use this major to help prepare for graduate study or human services and government work. A student majoring in Interdisciplinary Humanities cannot obtain a teaching certificate without taking additional work beyond degree requirements.

The Interdisciplinary Humanities major offers unusual flexibility in the choice of areas of concentration. The program is most suitable for self-disciplined students with clearly defined academic objectives. The one basic criterion is that the student's education shall have intellectual coherence. There are two ways of organizing the major. Both require the completion of 6 credits of course work in quantitative reasoning and a concentration of courses to form the major:

The Triad Program: The major consists of courses in three selected departments. All of the departments may be within the College of Arts and Letters, or two may be from the College of Arts and Letters and one from another college. With the flexibility of this program the student may pursue studies in related disciplines. The requirements for the major are satisfied by a total of 50 to 64 credits from three designated departments with a minimum of 15 credits in each. The student must also fulfill the 6 credit requirement in quantitative reasoning referenced in item 3.b. below.

Area or Period Studies: The major consists of courses in one department in the College of Arts and Letters, with a minimum of 15 credits at the 300 and 400 levels. This concentration provides a core; the remainder of the major may be selected from related interdepartmental combinations with a minimum of 20 additional credits in the College of Arts and Letters to bring the total to between 50 and 64 credits. The student must also fulfill the 6 credit requirement in quantitative reasoning referenced in item 3.b. below.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Interdisciplinary Humanities

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Humanities.
The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Interdisciplinary Humanities major is met by completing the Tier II writing requirement for one of the departmental majors that is associated with one of the emphasis areas within the College of Arts and Letters that the student selects to satisfy the requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Interdisciplinary Humanities. Refer to the requirements referenced in items 3. a. (2) (a) (i) and 3. a. (2) (b) (i) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree, with the exception of the College's cognate requirement.
3. The following requirements for the major:

² If the student selects a foreign language as an emphasis area, the courses must be at the 300–400 level or above.

³ For students who are admitted to Michigan State University as new freshmen and new transfer students beginning Fall 1993, courses in mathematics and in statistics and probability that may be used to satisfy the University mathematics requirement may not be counted toward this requirement.

HUMANITIES—PRELAW PROGRAM

Patricia R. Paulsell, Director

The Bachelor of Arts degree program in humanities—prelaw is derived from the triad version of the Bachelor of Arts degree program in interdisciplinary humanities. In the prelaw program, one emphasis area consists of course work selected from an approved list of prelaw courses in a variety of disciplines both within and outside the College of Arts and Letters. At least one of the other two emphasis areas must be a discipline within the College of Arts and Letters. The remaining emphasis area may also be within the College of Arts and Letters; however, students are encouraged to select an area outside the College in order to achieve the academic breadth appropriate for law and related fields.

Students with majors in departments within the College of Arts and Letters may add a prelaw component to their education by completing a cognate comprised of course work from the approved list of prelaw courses.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Humanities—Prelaw

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Humanities—Prelaw.

SPECIALIZATION IN BLACK AMERICAN AND DIASPORIC STUDIES

The Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies, administered by the College of Arts and Letters, is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University. With its focus on politics and society and arts and humanities, the specialization introduces students to interdisciplinary study of the historical and contemporary experiences of blacks in the United States and elsewhere in the Black Diaspora including the richness and complexity of the African continent. Students who enroll in this specialization will be challenged to think critically and to develop their research and communication skills and will find that this specialization provides them with a strong foundation for study in graduate and professional schools or for employment in government and business.

With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

The Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies is committed to mentoring and developing the research skills of undergraduates. Therefore, each student must enroll in ENG 493 English Internship for 3 credits as a requirement of the specialization. Students who enroll in this internship course will be research interns who will be required to meet regularly with Black American and Diasporic Studies faculty, develop and maintain a mentoring journal, and submit a research paper.

Students who plan to complete the requirements for the Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies must contact the adviser for the Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies. The student's program of study for the specialization must be approved in advance and in writing by the adviser for the specialization.

Upon completion of the requirements for the Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies, the student should contact the adviser for the Specialization in Black American and Diasporic Studies and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

SPECIALIZATION IN AMERICAN INDIAN STUDIES

The American Indian Studies Specialization is an interdisciplinary program that coordinates academic study, research, and outreach. The specialization focuses on American Indian cultural studies with an emphasis on native American peoples of the Midwest.

Students who elect this specialization will broaden their understanding of native cultures, history, and current issues important to North American Indians. They will apply such understanding to their chosen field of study. The specialization is open to all interested undergraduates.

Augmenting the academic courses students will be taking in native American studies, is an internship that requires students to visit, research, and participate in local Native American communities for one semester. Students will enroll in AL 493A Arts and Letters Internship with American Indian Studies affiliated faculty who will facilitate working relationships between student interns and local Native American communities and direct the interns development of a required research paper.

Students who plan to complete the requirements for the Specialization in American Indian Studies must contact the adviser for the American Indian Studies Program. Certain courses will only count towards the requirements for the specialization when the course has appropriate content focusing on American Indians. The adviser must approve each student's program of study in advance of enrollment and in writing.

Requirements for the Specialization in American Indian Studies

The student must complete 20 to 24 credits as specified below:

Upon completion of the requirements for the Specialization in Film Studies, the student should contact the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

SPECIALIZATION IN HEALTH AND HUMANITIES

The Specialization in Health and Humanities, which is administered by the College of Arts and Letters, is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University. Students wishing to pursue careers in health-related fields may find the specialization particularly appealing. In addition, students pursuing academic programs outside health-related fields often find that the specialization complements their major. With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

The health care system regularly affects many people's daily lives. The Specialization in Health and Humanities is designed to offer a comprehensive survey of the vocabularies, theories, and practices employed in the western tradition of health and healing. Students develop working vocabularies and basic intellectual concepts in the humanistic and social dimensions of health-related issues. This is accomplished through upper-level courses that address themes of health and healing from a wide variety of disciplinary perspectives. Courses in the specialization focus on the socio-cultural, historical, ethical, economic, literary, and technological dimensions of the biomedical sciences, health care delivery, and policymaking.

The specialization's interdisciplinary character encourages students' abilities to understand and question the health system from a wide variety of intellectual viewpoints. Students are thereby encouraged to range widely and deeply in their thinking about the ways the health system affects themselves and various communities. Such interdisciplinary study also promotes much needed communication across disciplinary boundaries. Finally, several of the courses in the specialization are specifically geared to improve problem-solving skills as well as oral and written communication abilities.

Requirements for the Specialization in Health and Humanities

The student must complete a minimum of five courses totaling at least 15 credits. No more than 8 of those credits may be in the same discipline. With the prior written approval of the undergraduate adviser for health and humanities, courses other than those included in these requirements may be counted toward the requirements for the specialization.

SPECIALIZATION IN RUSSIAN AND EAST EUROPEAN STUDIES

The Specialization in Russian and East European Studies, which is administered by the College of Arts and Letters, is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University. With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

The Specialization in Russian and East European Studies is designed to enhance the student's understanding of and appreciation for Russia and the East Central European countries (Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania, and Yugoslavia). The specialization offers an interdisciplinary, as well as a comparative and cross-cultural, approach to the study of those geographic areas.

The educational objectives of the Specialization in Russian and East European Studies are to:

- (1) Prepare students for graduate study or for careers in such areas as research, journalism, and business.
- (2) Help students to gain a broader understanding of their major disciplines within the context of a study of Russia and Eastern Europe incorporating courses and methodologies of the humanities and social sciences.
- (3) Stimulate student involvement in a comparative and cross-cultural approach to problems common to the United States and the societies of the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.
- (4) Respond to the increasing interest of United States citizens of Russian and East European descent in better appreciating their cultural heritage.

The undergraduate adviser for Russian and East European studies in the College of Arts and Letters coordinates the specialization on behalf of the Dean. That adviser assists the student in planning a program of study that is tailored to the student's interests, disciplinary major, and career objectives. The student's program of study for the specialization must be approved in advance and in writing by the undergraduate adviser for Russian and East European studies.

For additional information, refer to the statements on the disciplinary majors referenced above and to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

GRADUATE STUDY

The College of Arts and Letters offers a wide variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary programs leading to the Master of Arts, Master of Fine Arts, Master of Music, Doctor of Musical Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy degrees. Within the framework approved by the faculty of the University and College, graduate programs are designed to respond to current professional and social needs and to students' expectations and goals. The programs combine selected aspects of the following learning opportunities: requisite course work; outreach and teaching experiences; and production, performance, or research projects.

The College faculty and student body represent diverse backgrounds and cultures and work together to challenge past assumptions and set future directions in the humanities and the arts. An open and responsive learning environment continues to attract faculty, staff, and students from rich and varied cultural traditions into our educational community.

General Requirements for Consideration for Admission to Master's and Doctoral Degree Programs in the College of Arts and Letters

Each applicant must submit directly to the academic unit that administers the program to which admission is sought a letter giving the applicant's academic background and reasons for pursuing advanced study.

International applicants must fulfill the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog.

Academic units that administer master's and doctoral degree programs may specify additional requirements for consideration for admission such as a sample of an applicant's art work, a portfolio, or an audition.

Courses Used to Satisfy a Foreign Language Requirement in a Master's or Doctoral Degree Program in the College of Arts and Letters

If a foreign language requirement is included in a student's degree program, it is highly recommended that the student enroll in courses that are to be used to satisfy that requirement under the Credit-No Credit (CR-NC) system.

Academic Standards for Graduate Assistants in the College of Arts and Letters

- A graduate assistant in the College of Arts and Letters must:
 1. Maintain a cumulative grade-point average of at least 3.25.
 2. Not accumulate deferred grades (identified by the DF-Deferred marker) in more than 8 credits in courses (excluding courses numbered 899 and 999).

If at the end of a semester a graduate assistant fails to meet one or both of the requirements specified above, the graduate assistant shall receive a warning and be allowed to hold the graduate assistantship for one additional semester. If at the end of the additional semester the graduate assistant has failed to meet one or both of the requirements specified above, the graduate assistantship shall be withdrawn.

Master of Arts

Master of Arts degree programs are offered in the following areas: African American and African studies, American studies, comparative literature, English, French, German, health and humanities, Hispanic literatures, history, history of art, linguistics, music (some fields), philosophy, Russian, and theatre.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog, students must meet the requirements specified below.

2. A grade-point average of at least 3.00 in all previous graduate course work.

Final Oral Examination

The Dean of the College of Arts and Letters appoints a faculty member in the College to read the student's dissertation, to question the student during the examination, and to participate in the evaluation of the student's performance. However, that faculty member serves on the student's examining committee without vote.

INTERDISCIPLINARY PROGRAMS

AFRICAN AMERICAN AND AFRICAN STUDIES

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts in African American and African Studies is an interdisciplinary program of study devoted to advanced exploration and analysis of the social, cultural, and political experiences of Black peoples in the United States, Africa, and other parts of the African Diaspora.

Admission

Admission to graduate study in African American and African Studies is primarily to the doctoral program. However, under certain circumstances, the program will consider applications for admission to the Master of Arts in African American and African Studies from students who wish to earn a master's degree in preparation for the doctoral degree. Please consult with the program director if you wish.

To be considered for admission, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the College.
2. Submit a writing sample, usually a recent research paper, to the College of Arts and Letters.

To be admitted to the program with regular status, an applicant must have earned a bachelor's degree in an area of study appropriate for advanced work in this field.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in African American and African Studies

This program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. With the approval of the student's adviser, the student must choose an area of specialization. Courses selected for the degree must fit into a unified plan aimed at providing the student with both a comprehensive background and a depth of understanding of African American and African Studies. Courses used to complete the degree requirements must be approved by the student's adviser and the Director of African American and African Studies.

ARTS AND LETTERS
Interdisciplinary Programs

The student must:

1. Complete 30 credits of course work including:
 - a. A minimum of 6 credits of 800-level course work dealing with critical theories needed to undertake the advanced study of African American and African Studies.
 - b. A minimum of 6 credits of 800-level course work whose specific focus is African American and African Studies.
 - c. A minimum of 18 credits of electives that pertain to African American and African Studies. At least 9 of these credits must be in the area of specialization.
2. Pass an examination of reading comprehension in a foreign language appropriate to the study of African and African American Studies, or complete a 400-level reading course for graduate students in a foreign language appropriate to the study of African and African American Studies.
3. Pass a final certifying examination. The examination committee will consist of the student's adviser and members of the core faculty in African American and African Studies. The examination will consist of two parts: a) a general examination dealing with theoretical and critical approaches to African American and African Studies, and b) a specialized examination dealing with the student's area of specialization.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in African American and African Studies is an interdisciplinary program of study devoted to advanced exploration and analysis of the social, cultural, and political experiences of Black peoples in the United States, Africa, and other parts of the African Diaspora. The objective of the program is to develop scholars committed to academic excellence and social responsibility in the Black world and the broader community. Comparative, integrative, and applied approaches to the acquisition and use of knowledge are given emphasis.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy in African American and African Studies, an applicant must:

1. Have a 3.0 grade-point average in their last 30 credits of course work.
2. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the College.
3. Submit a writing sample, usually a recent research paper, to the College of Arts and Letters.

To be admitted with regular status, the applicant must have a master's degree in an appropriate field or have completed at least 30 credits of approved course work beyond the bachelor's degree. Applicants without a master's degree or sufficient course work may be admitted provisionally and be required to complete a specified number of collateral courses, not to count toward the degree, before regular admission is granted.

Guidance Committee

Three of the four guidance committee members must be selected from the core faculty of the African American and African Studies program. One member must be from the student's cognate specialization area.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in African American and African Studies

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and the College of Arts and Letters, students must complete 24 credits of doctoral dissertation research, and the requirements specified below:

	CREDITS
1. Complete 27 credits of course work including:
a. All of the following courses:
AL 830 Introduction to African American and African Studies I	3
AL 831 Introduction to African American and African Studies II	3
AL 832 Supervision Seminar in African American and African Studies	3
b. Both of the following courses for a total of 3 credits as approved by the guidance committee:
AL 890 Independent Study	1 or 2
AL 893A Internship in African American and African Studies	1 or 2
Must be performed in a Black community outside of the United States. Must be performed in an African American community.
c. A minimum of 3 credits in research methods in the area of specialization.
d. An additional 12 credits of course work selected from an approved course list and approved by the guidance committee. At least 6 of these credits must be in the area of specialization.
2. Choose an area of specialization in consultation with the guidance committee.
3. Choose either an African or non-African language to fulfill the language requirement. Students selecting an African language must attain spoken and written second-year proficiency in at least one language from the following list (Yoruba, Hausa, Zulu, Shona, or Swahili). Second-year proficiency will be measured by completion of two years of university-level course work in the language or by passing oral and written examinations equivalent to those given at the end of second-year course work. For non-African languages (Spanish, Portuguese, French, or other languages approved by the guidance committee) there must be demonstrated advanced reading proficiency relevant to the student's area of specialization.
4. Pass two comprehensive examinations: a general examination in African American and African Studies and an examination in the area of specialization.
5. Assist faculty in one offering of AL 495 Research-Mentoring in Black American and Diasporic Studies.
6. Submit a dissertation proposal to the guidance committee and pass an oral examination in defense of the proposal. This examination must be passed before the student may begin dissertation research.
7. Prepare and successfully defend the doctoral dissertation.

AMERICAN STUDIES

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program with a major in American Studies is designed for students who wish to study the culture, history, and civilization of the United States from an inter- and multidisciplinary perspective. Students may pursue the program in preparation for an interdisciplinary doctoral degree program, or as preparation for a disciplinary doctoral degree program in a field such as English, history, philosophy, religious studies, or history of art.

Students who are enrolled in the program explore the techniques, materials, and perspectives of American studies, American history, and American literature, as well as one other related discipline or thematic unit. Carefully coordinated, yet flexible, plans of study are available.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program with a major in American Studies, an applicant must:

1. Have at least two faculty who are able to assess the applicant's ability to pursue graduate study forward letters of recommendation to the College.
2. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test forwarded to the College.

3. Include in the letter required by the College a 400–700 word statement giving the applicant's background and reasons for pursuing advanced study.
4. Submit to the College a recent sample of academic and/or professional writing.

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in American studies on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree in American studies or a related field.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in American Studies

The program is available under both Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree under either Plan A or Plan B. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's academic adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

Requirements for Plan A and Plan B

1. At least one course in American history.
2. At least one course in American literature.
3. At least one additional course in either American history or American literature.
4. At least two courses in American studies.

Additional Requirements for Plan A

1. At least one course in another discipline or thematic unit.¹
2. Four to 6 credits of AL 899 Master's Thesis Research.
3. Pass an oral examination in defense of the thesis.

Additional Requirements for Plan B

1. At least three courses in another discipline or thematic unit.¹
2. Pass a final certifying examination.

Disciplines: anthropology, history of art, journalism, political science, philosophy, sociology.

Themes traced across disciplines: African–American culture, popular culture, women's studies, Native American culture, science and technology studies.

Vocational designs involving management skills pertinent to humanistic studies: material culture, historic preservation, museum studies.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy degree program in American Studies is designed for students who wish to understand the American experience by studying it from an interdisciplinary perspective. The educational objectives of the program are to promote the interdisciplinary study of American culture, past and present, its ideas and institutions. Students who complete the program should have acquired a general knowledge of American culture from the vantage of several disciplines and area studies, and a specific knowledge of one area of American culture.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in American studies, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the College.
2. Submit to the College a recent sample of academic and/or professional writing.
3. Include in the letter required by the College a 500–1000 word statement giving the applicant's goals in pursuing a doctoral degree.

To be admitted to the doctoral program in American studies on regular status, an applicant must have a master's degree in American studies or 30 credits of approved course work.

Guidance Committee

One faculty member from each of the three fields on which the student's comprehensive examinations are based shall serve on the student's guidance committee.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in American Studies

The student must:

1. Complete a minimum of 24 credits distributed between at least two disciplines or areas of study, including American Studies 881 and one additional 3 credit American Studies course. The student's guidance committee may require additional course work and an additional discipline or area of study.
2. Pass a written comprehensive examination over each of three of the fields listed below and an oral comprehensive examination that covers all three of those fields.

A student who fails a written comprehensive examination has one opportunity to retake that same examination. The examination must be retaken before the end of the semester following the one in which the examination was failed.

Within two weeks of passing the third written comprehensive examination, the student must taken an oral comprehensive examination.

All of the comprehensive examinations must be completed within one calendar year from the date that the first written comprehensive examination was taken.

The comprehensive examinations focus on three of the following fields, one of which is usually American history or American literature:

American history
American literature
African–American studies Anthropology
Cultural studies
Hispanic American studies Journalism
Material culture studies
Native American studies
Political science
Popular culture
Religious studies
Science–technology studies
Sociology
Women's studies

With the approval of the student's guidance committee and the American Studies Advisory Committee, the student may take comprehensive examinations in areas other than those referenced above.

3. Demonstrate competence in one foreign language approved by the student's guidance committee and the Director of American Studies.

Students whose focus of study involves cross-cultural research related to countries or groups of people in which a language other than English is essential must demonstrate competence in that language.

Students whose focus of study does not involve cross-cultural research may, with the approval of their guidance committees, complete additional course work in an area of study relevant to their research in lieu of demonstrating competence in a foreign language.

4. Submit a dissertation prospectus or abstract no longer than 10 pages to the guidance committee no later than the end of the semester following the one in which the student passed all of the comprehensive examinations. Approval of the prospectus or abstract is required before the student may continue work on the dissertation.

5. Pass the oral examination in defense of the dissertation.

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in comparative literature is designed for students who wish to study modern literature and literary criticism since Dante in international and multidisciplinary contexts. Students may pursue the program in preparation for interdisciplinary doctoral study in comparative literature, or in preparation for disciplinary doctoral study in one of the national literatures.

Students enroll in a core comparative literature curriculum that includes courses in literary theory and criticism. In addition, advanced course work in literature and in such disciplines as history, philosophy, and international studies contributes to the student's understanding of modern literary culture.

Individual programs of study are organized around the student's language competencies and interests. Such programs are developed in close consultation with the director of comparative literature, on the advice of participating faculty. A minimum of two years of study is required to complete the degree.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, the student must meet the requirements specified below:

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program with a major in comparative literature, an applicant must:

1. Have at least two faculty who are able to assess the applicant's ability to pursue graduate study forward letters of recommendation to the College.
2. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and, where possible, the results of at least one GRE Subject Test in a national language or literature forwarded to the College.
3. Have the results of the Educational Testing Service (ETS) language examination in English and, where possible, the results of the ETS language examinations in French, German, and Spanish forwarded to the College. Grades in advanced language courses in Italian and Russian will be considered in lieu of a standard test, as appropriate.
4. Include in the letter required by the College a 1000 word statement detailing the applicant's academic background and experience in language and literature, motives for pursuing graduate study in comparative literature, and personal sense of the value of such study.
5. Submit to the College a substantial research or critical essay written for a course in one of the national literatures.

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in comparative literature on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree with a major in comparative literature, or in one or more of the following national languages or literatures: English, French, German, Italian, Russian, or Spanish.
2. A reading knowledge of English and of French, German, Italian, Russian, or Spanish.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Comparative Literature

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the director of comparative literature. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

1. Complete 12 credits in the comparative literature core curriculum: Arts and Letters 821, 822, 823, 825.
2. Complete at least 12 credits in literature.
3. Complete up to 6 credits in literary history, criticism, and theory; history; philosophy; international studies; or other appropriate disciplines.
4. Pass written final certifying examinations, which are arranged by the director of comparative literature. The student takes these examinations in the final semester of study.

HEALTH and HUMANITIES

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in health and humanities focuses on the social and humanistic dimensions of health and illness. The goal of the program is to foster an interdisciplinary understanding of medical humanities.

The program is designed to appeal to persons:

1. with experience in health-related fields who wish to explore the humanistic and social dimensions of health at the graduate level.
2. who anticipate advanced graduate study in the medical humanities, but who are undecided as to the disciplinary direction that they will pursue. Such persons should be aware that course work in a discipline beyond that which is included in the health and humanities program may be required for admission to graduate study in that discipline.
3. wish to combine other graduate-professional programs with a program in health and humanities.

Students who are enrolled in other graduate or graduate-professional programs may enroll in health and humanities courses as electives.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in health and humanities, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the College.
2. Have three faculty who are able to address the applicant's academic background and/or professional experiences submit letters of recommendation to the College.
3. Include in the letter required by the College a 500–750 word statement that addresses the two areas of concentration within the degree program that the applicant wishes to pursue.
4. Submit to the College a writing sample, preferably an essay or other product that reflects the degree of the applicant's familiarity with an issue in one of the two areas of concentration within the degree program that the applicant wishes to pursue.

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in health and humanities on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree that reflects academic background in at least one of the two areas of concentration within the degree program that the applicant wishes to pursue.

Students are admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in health and humanities for Fall semester only. Applications for admission must be received by February 15. Any applications received after February 15 are held for possible consideration at a later time if space in the program becomes available.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Health and Humanities

The program is available under Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the director of Interdisciplinary Programs in Health and Humanities. Each student must select a primary area of concentration from among the following: epidemiology, history of medicine, literature and medicine, medical anthropology, medical sociology, nursing, philosophy of medicine and bioethics, or social work. Areas of concentration are subject to change. Students may construct other areas of concentration with the approval of the director of the Interdisciplinary Program in Health and Humanities.

In Plan A, the thesis committee shall consist of three regular Michigan State University faculty with no more than two from the same academic discipline or department. In Plan B, the examination committee shall consist of two regular Michigan State University faculty at least one of whom is appointed in a discipline represented by the student's primary area of concentration.

Students must fulfill the requirements specified below:

	CREDITS
1. Plan A (with thesis)
a. The following course (3 credits):
AL 820 Humanistic Perspectives on Health	3
b. A minimum of 15 credits in a primary area of concentration	15
c. A minimum of 6 credits outside the primary area of concentration, in support of the thesis	6
d. The following course (4 to 6 credits):
AL 899 Master's Thesis Research	4 to 6
e. Pass an oral certifying examination on the topic of the thesis. This examination will be administered by the thesis committee. The thesis must reflect an integration of more than one disciplinary perspective beyond the disciplinary perspective of the student's primary area of concentration.
2. Plan B (without thesis)
a. The following course (3 credits):
AL 820 Humanistic Perspectives on Health	3
b. A minimum of 12 credits in a primary area of concentration	12
c. A minimum of 8 credits outside the primary area of concentration
d. Successfully complete a research paper on a topic in health and humanities by enrolling in and passing AL 898 Master's Research. The student's examination committee must approve both the paper topic and the final submitted paper	1 to 3

Interdisciplinary Doctoral Emphases

A doctoral student who is interested in interdisciplinary studies should consult the department representing his or her major interest.

DEPARTMENT of AMERICAN THOUGHT and LANGUAGE

Douglas A. Noverr, Chairperson

The department is responsible for providing courses that meet the University's common Tier I writing requirement. Its courses are designed also to improve the student's ability to read, to collect and analyze information, and to develop understanding in order to communicate ideas to others in clear, effective, and persuasive prose. Readings in selected historical, social, and literary documents deepen students' knowledge of the American cultural heritage and provide important and coherent subject matter for developing their reading, critical thinking, and writing skills.

The department also offers work designed to bring students with minimal writing skills to a level which will enable them to complete University studies.

DEPARTMENT of ART and ART HISTORY

James A. Hopfensperger, Chairperson

The Department of Art and Art History is dedicated to the creation and historical study of the visual arts through its undergraduate and graduate degree programs.

Students are encouraged individually and collectively to develop aesthetic awareness, perceptual and creative problem-solving skills, analytic and synthetic forms of visual reasoning, and informed judgment in a learning environment that values expression, philosophical reflection, and spiritual growth.

In studio art students explore and create using the language of two- and three-dimensional form, space, and time in traditional media and new technologies. In history of art, students study the history of painting, sculpture, architecture and other art forms from a wide range of Western, Asian, African, Latin American and other traditions and geographical regions. In art education, students prepare to become visual-arts teachers by engaging in studio production and studying aesthetics, criticism, and history of art.

The Department of Art and Art History sponsors changing student art exhibitions in Gallery 114 throughout the academic year. The annual Department of Art and Art History Undergraduate Exhibition and the Master of Fine Arts Exhibition is held in the Kresge Art Museum. All students are welcome to view these shows as well as other examples of art displayed in the Kresge Art Center. See also www.art.msu.edu.

Policy on Retention of Students' Art Work

If student art work is retained for possible inclusion in the current year's Undergraduate Exhibition, it will be returned to students with other juried work. Otherwise, all students enrolled in studio art courses must assume responsibility for the retrieval of their semester's work [piece(s), portfolio, project(s), etc.] during the final examination period. Neither the department nor the instructor will assume responsibility for the retention or storage of such work after that time. Students enrolled in courses in which multiple images are made (printmaking, photography, graphic design) should be prepared to have selected copies retained by the department for use as teaching examples.

- (3) A concentration of at least 3 courses, including at least one 400-level course, in one of the following subdisciplines (8 to 12 credits):
 Ceramics: Studio Art 340, 345, 440, 491C.
 Graphic Design: Studio Art 360, 460, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 491E.
 Painting: Studio Art 320, 325, 420, 491A.
 Photography: Studio Art 370, 470, 472, 473, 474, 475, 491F.
 Printmaking: Studio Art 430, 431, 432, 433, 435, 491B.
 Sculpture: Studio Art 350, 351, 354, 355, 450, 491D.
- (4) Studio Art electives: Additional credits in 300-400 level Studio Art courses as needed to meet the requirement of at least 36, but not more than 40, credits in courses in the major.
 A course that is listed in requirements 3. a. (2) and (3) may be counted toward both of those requirements.
- b. History of Art Cognate: Four courses including History of Art 120 and 121 and at least one course at the 400-level. 14 to 16

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

The Department of Art and Art History offers four undergraduate degree programs and a specialization:

- Bachelor of Arts
 - History of Art
 - Studio Art
- Bachelor of Fine Arts
 - Art Education
 - Studio Art
- Specialization in Museum Studies

Transfer Students. Up to 22 credits in studio art courses may be accepted from accredited institutions. Within this limitation transfer applicants should have accumulated studio art credits comparable to the earnings of Michigan State University students of equivalent standing. To ensure enrollment in the appropriate courses, students are advised to plan matriculation in the fall and to take advantage of the high enrollment priority accorded those who participate in summer Academic Orientation Programs. All art majors including those changing from other programs in this University must comply with the requirements listed below.

STUDIO ART

The Bachelor of Arts degree program with a major in Studio Art is a liberal arts program. Emphasis is on breadth of study, and the number of required Studio Art courses is limited so that students may complete College and University requirements and electives.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Studio Art

- 1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Studio Art.
 The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Studio Art major is met by completing Studio Art 492. That course is referenced in item 3. a. (1) below.
- 2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree.
 The completion of requirement 3. b. referenced below satisfies one of the cognates that the College requires. The second cognate must be in a field outside the College of Arts and Letters.
- 3. The following requirements for the major:

- a. The following Studio Art courses: CREDITS 36 to 40
 - (1) All of the following courses: Studio Art 110, 111, 113, 114, 492 (14 credits).
 The completion of Studio Art 492 satisfies the capstone course requirement for the Studio Art major.
 - (2) Four of the following courses including at least one course from each of the following three areas and one course from each of 4 subdisciplines (identified by the middle digit of the course number) (12 or 13 credits):
 Design Area: Studio Art 360, 370.
 Two-dimensional Area: Studio Art 300, 320.
 Three-dimensional Area: Studio Art 340, 350, 351, 354, 355.

HISTORY OF ART

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts degree program in History of Art is designed to prepare students for future graduate work or entry-level positions in art museums, galleries, and photographic archives. Students in history of art compete successfully for internships at major museums and government agencies and for admission to graduate programs throughout the United States and abroad.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in History of Art

- 1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in History of Art.
 The University's Tier II writing requirement for the History of Art major is met by completing History of Art 489. That course is referenced in item 3. a. (4) below.
- 2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree.
 The completion of requirement 3.b. referenced below satisfies the College's foreign language requirement.
 The completion of requirement 3.c. referenced below satisfies one of the cognates required by the College. The second cognate must be in a field outside the College.
- 3. The following requirements for the major:

- a. The following courses related to History of Art:¹ CREDITS 34 to 40
 - (1) One of the following courses (4 credits):
 HA 120 Perspectives on World Art: What is Art? 4
 HA 121 Perspectives on World Art: The Creative Process 4
 - (2) One of the following courses (3 credits):
 HA 260 East Asian Art² 3
 HA 270 Art of Africa, Oceania, and the Americas² 3
 - (3) Four of the following courses (12 credits):
 HA 209 Ancient Art 3
 HA 210 Medieval Art 3
 HA 230 Renaissance and Baroque Art 3
 HA 240 Modern Art 3
 HA 250 American Art 3
 HA 260 East Asian Art² 3
 HA 270 Art of Africa, Oceania, and the Americas² 3
 - (4) The following course (3 credits):
 HA 489 Methods and Approaches in History of Art (W) 3
 - (5) At least 12 additional credits in History of Art courses at the 400-level.¹
 - (6) History of Art electives: Additional credits in History of Art courses as needed to meet the requirement of at least 34, but not more than 40, credits in courses in the major, excluding History of Art 120 or 121.¹
 - (7) A capstone experience involving an internship, field study, a graduate seminar in history of art, or overseas study approved by the student's academic adviser.¹
- b. Second year competency in French, German, or Italian. This requirement may be satisfied by placing into a 300-level course in French, German, or Italian based on a MSU placement test.
- c. A cognate of 12 credits from within the College of Arts and Letters to be selected from classical studies, English, foreign language, history, music history, philosophy, religious studies,

- or theatre history. At least one course must be at the 300–400 level. 12
- d. A cognate of 12 credits from outside the College of Arts and Letters. Both the cognate and the related courses must be approved by the History of Art adviser. 12

² This course may be used to satisfy either requirement 3. a. (2) or requirement 3. a. (3), but not both of those requirements.

Bachelor of Fine Arts

STUDIO ART

The Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program with a major in studio art is a professional studio art program. Its emphasis is for students anticipating careers in the practice of art or design, or for students planning on graduate study in either of those fields.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree in Studio Art

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Studio Art.
The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Studio Art major is met by completing Studio Art 492. That course is referenced in item 3. a. (1) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.
3. The following requirements for the major:

	CREDITS
a. The following Studio Art courses:	61 to 63
(1) All of the following courses: Studio Art 110, 111, 113, 114, 300, 492, and 492A (18 credits). The completion of Studio Art 492 satisfies the capstone course requirement for the Studio Art major.
(2) Four of the following courses including at least one course from each of the following 3 areas and one course from each of 4 subdisciplines (identified by the middle digit of the course number) (12 or 13 credits): Design Area: Studio Art 360, 370. ART EDUCATION

The Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program with a major in art education is a preprofessional program that is limited to students with a teacher certification option. The program is designed for persons who plan to be certified by the State of Michigan as art specialists in grades K–12 in public schools.

The art education program is designed to:

1. develop highly specialized multiple and technical skills and to address conceptual content in the disciplines of studio art and art history.
2. include pedagogy-specific content and clinical experiences in art teaching and learning situations with elementary and secondary students in preparation for the Teacher Certification Internship–Year Studies program.

Upon satisfactory completion of the requirements for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree with a major in art education, the bachelor's degree is granted. However, in order for Michigan State University to recommend a person for a teaching certificate, that person must also complete the requirements for the Internship–Year Studies program described under the heading TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog; the required disciplinary minor must be in Visual Arts.

Students who have been admitted to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program with a major in art education are thereby qualified to pursue the Internship–Year Studies program upon completion of the baccalaureate degree and successful performance on tests designated by the State of Michigan for teacher certification.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree in Art Education

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Art Education.
The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Art Education major is met by completing Studio Art 481 and 482. Those courses are referenced in item 3. a. below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.
3. The following requirements for the major:

d. The requirements for the disciplinary minor in Visual Arts as specified in the statement on REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DISCIPLINARY MINORS LISTED ABOVE in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog:	24

One of the following courses may be used to satisfy the requirements for the disciplinary minor in Visual Arts: Integrative Studies in Arts and Humanities 241A, 241C, 241D, 241E, or 241F. That course may also be used to satisfy the University Integrative Studies in Arts and Humanities requirement.

A student with a major in art education must earn a minimum grade-point average of 2.00 in the courses listed in items 3.a. and 3. b. below.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTIONS

The art education disciplinary major leading to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree is available for teacher certification.

A visual arts disciplinary minor is also available for teacher certification. That minor is available only to students with an art education disciplinary major. Students with an art education disciplinary major must complete the requirements for the visual arts disciplinary minor.

Students with a disciplinary major in art education must complete Studio Art 481 and 482 in lieu of Teacher Education 401 and 402.

Students who elect the art education disciplinary major and the visual arts disciplinary minor must contact the Department of Art and Art History.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

SPECIALIZATION IN MUSEUM STUDIES

The Specialization in Museum Studies, administered by the Department of Art and Art History, is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University. The specialization provides an opportunity for study focused on the development, interpretation, management, preservation, and access of collections of art, cultural history, and natural history. This specialization complements a number of major fields of study: art history, American Studies, anthropology, botany, business, history, human environment and design, park, recreation and tourism resources, studio art, and zoology. Students who plan graduate study or who wish to pursue careers in museums, other educational institutions, or corporate collections may find this specialization particularly appealing.

With the approval of the department and the college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

The Specialization in Museum Studies includes course work and an internship experience. Courses are planned to provide a broad overview of museum history as well as knowledge of museum theory, methodology and practice consistent with contemporary national and international standards. Multiculturalism, cultural and demographic change, scholarly directions, and varied types of collections are studied. Campus and regional museums, collections, and exhibitions provide active learning experiences. The Kresge Art Museum, the Michigan State University Museum (Archaeology, Mammalogy, Folk Arts), Beal-Darlington Herbarium, Michigan State University Library Special Collections, and Human Environment and Design Historic Collections are among the relevant campus sites.

The undergraduate adviser for the Museum Studies specialization is a faculty member from the Department of Art and Art History who participates in the specialization and has considerable museum experience.

Requirements for the Specialization in Museum Studies

- CREDITS
1. The student must complete the following (15 credits):
 - a. Both of the following courses:

HA 485	Museum Studies	3
HA 493C	Museum Internship	2 or 3
 - b. At least three of the following courses:

HA 494	Museum Exhibitions: Theory and Development	3
HA 487	Approaches to Museum Education	3
HA 488	Museum Collections Management	3
HA 492	Special Topics in Museum Studies	1 to 3
	Elective

With approval of the undergraduate adviser for Museum Studies, a course selected from a wide range of disciplines may be counted toward the requirements for the Specialization in Museum Studies.

Upon completion of the requirements for the Specialization in Museum Studies, the student should contact the undergraduate adviser for Museum Studies and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the Chairperson of the Department of Art and Art History and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This information will appear on the student's transcript.

GRADUATE STUDY

The Department of Art and Art History offers programs leading to the Master of Arts degree and the Master of Fine Arts degree. These degree programs offer opportunities for the development of individual abilities and interests within the visual arts, and the history of art.

HISTORY OF ART

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in history of art is intended primarily for those students who plan to continue their graduate studies beyond the master's degree in order to prepare themselves for teaching positions at the university or college level or for curatorial positions in museums. The program is also for persons who would terminate their graduate studies at this level. Certain positions in museum work and in college teaching require no higher academic degree than the Master of Arts.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in history of art on a regular status, an applicant must have completed at least 18 semester credits in history of art courses and at least two years of French, German, or Italian at the college level or the equivalent.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in History of Art

The program is available only under Plan A (with thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's academic adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

1. Complete at least 27 credits in History of Art courses including:
 - a. HA 489 Methods and Approaches in History of Art. This course must be completed during the first year of enrollment in the program.
 - b. Five credits of HA 899 Master's Thesis Research.
 - c. At least one course at the 400 or 800 level in each of four of the following six areas:
 - Ancient Art
 - Medieval Art
 - Renaissance and Baroque Art
 - Modern Art
 - Asian Art
 - African, Oceanic, and Indigenous American Art

- d. A minimum of 16 credits in courses at the 800 level in three of the six areas referenced in item 1. c. above.

Credits in the following courses may not be used to satisfy requirement 1. c. or 1. d.: History of Art 481, 484, 486, 490, 491, 890; Urban Planning 483. However, with the approval of the faculty in history of art, credits in these courses may be counted toward the 30 credits required for the degree.

Credits in seminars and in master's thesis research may be used to satisfy this requirement 1. c. or 1. d.

2. Pass a general examination over a broad range of art historical areas.
3. Pass an oral examination in defense of the thesis.

STUDIO ART

Master of Fine Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

Applicants must meet the general requirements for consideration for admission to master's and doctoral degree programs in the College of Arts and Letters referenced in the College statement.

To be considered for admission to the Master of Fine Arts degree program in studio art, an applicant must:

1. Submit to the department 20 color transparencies of his or her own work.
2. Include in the letter required by the College a 400–700 word essay outlining the reasons for pursuing the program.
3. Submit to the department a resume of professional accomplishments.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in studio art from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in art that are required for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in studio art at Michigan State University or their equivalents.

Students are admitted to the Master of Fine Arts degree program in studio art for Fall semester only. The deadline for submitting applications for admission to the program is January 15.

The department believes that studio space must be made available to students who are admitted to the program as a means of fostering their creativity. Therefore, the number of students who can be admitted to the program will be limited by the availability of suitable studio space.

Residence

The student must earn a minimum of 6 credits in the degree program in residence on campus during the final two semesters of enrollment in the program.

Requirements for the Master of Fine Arts Degree in Studio Art

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 60 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's academic adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

1. Be enrolled in the program for a minimum of two academic years.
2. Complete at least 6 credits of STA 892 Master of Fine Arts Seminar. The student must enroll in 3 credits of Studio Art 892 during the first semester of enrollment in the program.
3. Complete at least 36 additional credits in Studio Art courses including:
 - a. A minimum of 30 credits in one of the following five areas of concentration: ceramics, graphic design, painting, printmaking, or sculpture.

- b. At least 6 credits of Studio Art 898 Master of Fine Arts Research. These credits must be completed while in residence during the final two semesters of enrollment in the program.

4. Complete at least 8 credits in 400–800 level History of Art courses.
5. Complete any courses outside the department that may be required.
6. Pass an oral final certifying examination over the student's research. The student must take this examination while in residence during the final semester of enrollment in the program.
7. Participate in the MFA Exhibition accompanied by a public presentation in the Kresge Art Museum.

Academic Standards

The student must pass a qualifying review prior to completing 15 credits in courses in the program. A student may accumulate no more than 9 credits with a grade below 3.0 in courses that are to be counted toward the degree.

Transfer Credits

Transfer credits must have been completed within the time limit for the degree.

DEPARTMENT of ENGLISH

Patrick J. O'Donnell, Chairperson

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

The Department of English offers a Bachelor of Arts degree program with a major in English. Students have an opportunity to plan a program of study that emphasizes their career or academic goals. Students may also elect courses in one or more special areas of interest, such as creative writing, popular culture, American studies, British studies, folklore and mythology, linguistics, comparative literature, Afro–American literature, literary theory, and problems in the teaching and learning of reading.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in English

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in English.

The University's Tier II writing requirement for the English major is met by completing one course from each of the following two groups:

 - a. One of the following courses: English 310A, 310B, 310C, 310D, or 310E.
 - b. One 400–level English course excluding English 413.

Those courses are referenced in items 3.a.(2) through 3.a.(5) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree.
3. The following requirements for the major:

ENG 431B Third World Cinema	4
ENG 431C Studies in Film and Gender	4

Upon completion of the required courses, the student should contact the Department of English and request certification for the completion of the Film Studies Option. After the certification is approved by the chairperson of the department and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the option and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTIONS

The English disciplinary major leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree is available for teacher certification.

An English disciplinary minor is also available for teacher certification.

Students with an English disciplinary major must complete the following additional disciplinary courses: English 302, 308, 313, and 408. English 302 and 313 may be used to satisfy the requirements referenced in item 3. a. (5) under the heading Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in English, as well as the requirements for teacher certification. English 408 may be used to satisfy the requirements referenced in item 3. a. (4) or 3. a. (5) under the heading Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in English, as well as the requirements for teacher certification. However, English 308 may be used by students in the English teacher certification program to satisfy only the requirements for teacher certification; that course may not be used to satisfy the requirements referenced in item 3. a. (5) under the heading Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in English.

Students who elect the English disciplinary major or the English disciplinary minor must contact the Department of English.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

SPECIALIZATION IN POSTCOLONIAL AND DIASPORA LITERATURE AND CULTURE

The Specialization in Postcolonial and Diaspora Literature and Culture, which is administered by the Department of English, is available as an elective to all students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University.

The Specialization in Postcolonial and Diaspora Literature and Culture is designed to enhance the student's understanding of the literatures that have arisen out of the colonial experience and decolonialization, and the critical theory that is concerned with those experiences. In general, students will have an opportunity to study one or more of the following literatures: African, African-American, Asian, Asian-American, Latino, Latina, Chicano, Chicana, and South American literatures and other diaspora literatures, and the literatures of native peoples. While the focus is generally upon non-Western areas, those aspects of American, British, and Irish literature that fall under this rubric will also be included.

Students who plan to complete the requirements for the specialization must contact the undergraduate adviser for postcolonial and diaspora literature and culture in the Department of English and sign a statement of interest in the specialization. The student's program of study for the specialization must be approved by that adviser.

Students who elect the Specialization in Postcolonial and Diaspora Literature and Culture are encouraged to complete one or more of the following courses in partial fulfillment of the University Integrative Studies requirement: Integrative Studies in Arts and Humanities 211A, 211B, 211C; Integrative Studies in Social, Behavioral and Economic Sciences 215, 315, 330A, 330C, 335, 336.

With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

Upon completion of the requirements for the Specialization in Postcolonial and Diaspora Literature and Culture, the student should contact the Chairperson of the Department of English and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the chairperson of the department and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

GRADUATE STUDY

Graduate study in the Department of English leads to the Master of Arts or the Doctor of Philosophy degree. Each degree represents a different level of understanding and skill in such related areas as literary scholarship and criticism, the study of the English language, critical studies in the teaching of English, and creative writing.

The Department of English offers two programs leading to the Master of Arts degree. The various programs reflect the conviction that the study of literature written in English should be integrated with the study of the English language in both its historical and its current forms and uses, and with the study of reading and writing as language processes.

General Requirements for Consideration for Admission to Master's and Doctoral Degree Programs in the Department of English

To be considered for admission to a master's or doctoral degree program in the Department of English, an applicant must:

1. Include in the letter required by the College a 750–1000 word statement giving the applicant's academic background and reasons for pursuing the advanced degree for which application has been made.
2. Have three persons who are qualified to comment upon the applicant's ability to pursue graduate study forward letters of recommendation to the department.

Students are admitted to the master's degree programs for Fall and Spring semesters only and to the doctoral degree program for Fall semester only. The deadlines for submitting applications for admission are:

- January 10 for Fall semester
- November 1 for Spring semester

Master of Arts

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH

Students in the Master of Arts degree program in literature in English pursue one of the following two options: literary studies or creative writing.

Students who elect the literary studies option concentrate on the study of literature in English and on the study of the English language in either its historical or current forms and uses. This option is designed to develop the skills associated with literary scholarship and criticism, thus serving persons who wish to continue study beyond the master's degree and persons who wish to deepen their understanding of literature while pursuing or preparing for careers in other fields.

Students who elect the creative writing option concentrate on developing more fully their creative writing skills and increasing their knowledge of literature and its study.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the Department of English, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in literature in English, an applicant must:

1. Specify which of the two options, literary studies or creative writing, the applicant plans to pursue.
2. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test forwarded to the department. In addition, an applicant who plans to pursue the literary studies option must have the results of the GRE Subject Test in English literature or in an appropriate cognate area forwarded to the department.
3. Submit to the department additional information as specified below:
 - a. An applicant who plans to pursue the literary studies option must submit a writing sample that reflects aptitude for critical and scholarly writing.
 - b. An applicant who plans to pursue the creative writing option must submit a substantial portfolio of poems, fiction, or plays (or any combination of such work).

(The writing sample or portfolio supplements the personal statement that is required for all applicants to graduate programs in the department.)

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have:

ARTS AND LETTERS
Department of English

1. A baccalaureate degree in English or a related field.
2. Completed a minimum of 20 semester credits in English courses, exclusive of freshman composition, with a grade–point average of at least 3.50.
3. Completed two years of study in a foreign language at the college level.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Literature in English

For students who elect the literary studies option:

The student who elects the literary studies option must complete a total of 30 credits for the degree under either Plan A (with thesis) or Plan B (without thesis). The student's program of study must be approved by the Graduate Chairperson. Not more than 4 credits of ENG 890 Independent Study may be counted toward the requirements for the Master of Arts degree in literature in English. English 890 may not be substituted for any required course.

6. Pass a final oral certifying examination on the original master's project and course work.

CRITICAL STUDIES IN THE TEACHING OF ENGLISH

The Master of Arts degree program in critical studies in the teaching of English is designed for teachers in middle schools, junior high schools, and secondary schools and for persons who plan to teach English in two–year colleges. The goal of the program is to prepare scholars and teachers in the field of English education. The program emphasizes the teaching and learning of reading, writing, oral language, and literature, as well as research in those areas. Central to the program's emphasis is the critical examination of ethnicity and multiculturalism as they apply to the teaching of English; the democratization of the classroom; the role of language and schooling in society at large; and the politics of language, literacy, and culture.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the Department of English, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in critical studies in the teaching of English, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and the results of the GRE Subject Test in English literature or in an appropriate cognate area forwarded to the department.
2. Submit to the department a writing sample that reflects aptitude for critical and scholarly writing. (The writing sample supplements the personal statement that is required for all applicants to graduate programs in the department.)

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A baccalaureate degree in English or a related field.
2. Completed a minimum of 20 semester credits in English courses, exclusive of freshman composition, with a grade–point average of at least 3.25.
3. Completed two years of study in a foreign language or in American Sign Language at the college level. Students will be admitted provisionally if this requirement is not satisfied prior to admission. This requirement may be met during the M.A. program or by completion of two applied linguistics courses: English 461 or 861, and English 991A. These credits will not count towards the degree.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Critical Studies in the Teaching of English

The program is available under either Plan A (with thesis) or Plan B (without thesis). A total of 31 credits is required for the degree under Plan A; a total of 30 credits is required for the degree under Plan B. The student's program of study must be approved by the Graduate Chairperson.

ENGLISH

The following three emphases are available within the doctoral degree program in English:

- literature in English
- critical studies in the teaching of English
- English language studies and teaching of English to speakers of other languages

Although the student selects one of the emphases as the primary focus of study, courses in the other two emphases may be included in the student's program.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the Department of English, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in English, an applicant must:

1. Specify the emphasis that the applicant plans to pursue.
2. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test forwarded to the department. In addition, an applicant who plans to pursue the literature in English emphasis or the critical studies in the teaching of English emphasis must have the results of the GRE Subject Test in English literature or in an appropriate cognate area forwarded to the department.
3. Submit to the department copies of papers written at the master's level.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A master's degree in English or in an appropriate cognate area.
2. An academic record that reflects graduate work of high quality.
3. Met the foreign language requirement for admission on regular status to the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the doctoral emphasis that the student plans to pursue.
4. Completed all of the requirements for the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the doctoral emphasis that the student plans to pursue, or their equivalents.

Students who are admitted to the doctoral degree program in English before they have satisfied the requirements referenced in items 3. and 4. above must do so before they may take the comprehensive examinations. Credits in courses that are used to satisfy these requirements may not be used to satisfy the requirements for the doctoral degree.

To be admitted on an accelerated basis to the doctoral degree program in English, after one year of M.A. course work, students must:

1. Be enrolled in the MSU Department of English Master of Arts programs in Literature in English or Critical Studies in the Teaching of English.
2. Submit a statement of purpose of 750-1000 words describing the student's specific area of interest(s) and desired area(s) of emphasis.
3. Submit two letters from faculty members who support their application for accelerated admission.
4. Complete a minimum of five courses at MSU in either: (1) the English in Literature program, including the required core courses and two seminars in literature from different periods; or (2) the Critical Studies in the Teaching of English program, consisting of English 840 and 845, one 800-level literature course, and two of the following three courses: English 875, English 876, or an 800-level literature course (to be determined in consultation with an adviser).

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in English

The student must:

1. Complete at least 24 credits of graduate-level course work, of which at least 12 credits must be at the 900 level (9 credits for students with an emphasis in English language studies and teaching English to speakers of other languages), with a grade-point average of at least 3.50. Not more than 3 credits of independent study may be used to satisfy this requirement.
2. Complete a language requirement at the college level as specified below:

Students with an emphasis in literature in English or in English language studies and teaching English to speakers of other languages must satisfy one of the following requirements:

- a. Demonstrate advanced reading proficiency in the foreign language that is associated with the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the student's doctoral emphasis.
- b. Demonstrate second-year proficiency in a foreign language other than the one that is associated with the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the student's doctoral emphasis.

Students with an emphasis in critical studies in the teaching of English must satisfy one of the following requirements:

- a. Demonstrate advanced reading proficiency in the foreign language that is associated with the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the student's doctoral emphasis.
- b. Demonstrate second-year proficiency in a foreign language or in American Sign Language, other than the one that is associated with the MSU Master of Arts degree program that corresponds to the student's doctoral emphasis.
- c. Complete two courses in language variation. This option is available only to students whose comprehensive examinations or dissertation does not involve this subject matter area.
- d. Complete two courses in African American vernacular English and rhetoric. This option is available only to students whose comprehensive examinations or dissertation does not involve this subject matter area.
- e. Complete two courses in teaching English to speakers of other languages. This option is available only to students whose comprehensive examinations or dissertation does not involve this subject matter area.

ARTS AND LETTERS
Department of English

3. Pass two comprehensive examinations, one in a general field of English and one in a specialized field of English.
4. Complete requirements 1. through 3. above and have a grade–point average of at least 3.50 in all graduate course work before beginning work on the dissertation.
5. Pass a pre–dissertation examination that consists of an oral presentation based on a written proposal of the dissertation.
6. Pass a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation.

Academic Standards

A student who fails the comprehensive examinations, the pre–dissertation examination, or the final oral examination in defense of the dissertation may repeat that examination only once.

DEPARTMENT of HISTORY

Lewis Siegelbaum, Chairperson

The Department of History offers courses which deal with human societies in all geographical regions and time–periods. Courses in African, Asian, Latin American, European, and North American history provide a rich array of offerings, many of which focus on issues of race, ethnicity, and gender while providing insight into the human condition as a whole.

All courses in History have the goal of helping students learn how to think and write historically in a critical and insightful manner. History courses emphasize learning how to identify viewpoints, gather and organize historical information, distinguish facts from interpretations, and recognize historical relationships and patterns, and to appreciate the relevance of historical insight to the understanding of current events and problems.

By involving all students in the process of careful analysis of evidence and thoughtful, cogent expression of ideas, the department seeks to equip students with intellectual skills which have multiple uses in the larger society outside the university. Its programs, in addition to providing a liberal education, are designed to serve as professional preparation in various fields, including teaching; the law; federal, state, and local government; work in historical societies and museums; and research.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

The department offers a Bachelor of Arts degree program for students majoring in history.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in History

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in History.

SPECIALIZATION IN AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY AND CULTURE

The Specialization in African American History and Culture, which is administered by the Department of History, is designed to:

1. Help students to better understand and appreciate African American art, history, literature, music, and religion.
2. Help students to become more aware of the role of African Americans within the context of American history.
3. Promote scholarship in African American history and culture.

Students who plan to complete the requirements for the specialization must contact the undergraduate adviser for African American History and Culture in the Department of History and sign a statement of interest in the specialization. The student's program of study for the specialization must be approved by that adviser.

With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

² Only one of the following three courses may be used to satisfy the requirements for the Specialization in African American History and Culture: American Thought and Language 125; Integrative Studies in Arts and Humanities 211C, 241A. That course may also be used to satisfy University requirements.

³ To be counted toward the requirements for the Specialization in African American History and Culture, the content of this course must focus on African American culture. The undergraduate adviser for African American History and Culture in the Department of History must approve in writing the content of this course before the student enrolls in the course.

⁴ To be counted toward the requirements for the Specialization in African American History and Culture, the content of this course must focus on African American history. The undergraduate adviser for African American History and Culture in the Department of History must approve in writing the content of this course before the student enrolls in the course.

Upon completion of the requirements for the Specialization in African American History and Culture, the student should contact the Chairperson of the Department of History and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the chairperson of the department and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTIONS

The history disciplinary major leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree is available for teacher certification.

A history disciplinary minor is also available for teacher certification.

Students who elect the history disciplinary major or the history disciplinary minor must contact the Department of History.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

GRADUATE STUDY

Graduate programs in the Department of History are designed primarily for students whose career goals require a doctoral degree. In addition, to respond to particular needs of current or prospective secondary-school history teachers, the department also offers a Master of Arts degree program with a major in history-secondary school teaching. The department welcomes applicants who are prepared to pursue a rigorous program of graduate study.

HISTORY

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in history is designed for students who desire a general course of advanced study in the field.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

Admission to graduate study in the Department of History is primarily to the doctoral program. However, under certain circumstances, the department will consider applications for admission to the Master of Arts in History from students who wish to earn a master's degree in preparation for the doctoral degree. Please consult with the Departmental Graduate Studies Director if you wish to apply for the Master of Arts in History.

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in history, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and the results of the GRE Subject Test in History forwarded to the department.
2. Submit to the department a term paper that the applicant considers to be a fair representation of his or her ability in research and writing.
3. Include in the letter required by the College a 500–1000 word statement that addresses the applicant's goals in pursuing a Master of Arts degree program in history.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A baccalaureate degree in history or in another field.
2. A grade–point average of at least 3.50 for the last two years of undergraduate study.
3. Completed a minimum of 20 semester credits in history courses with a grade–point average of at least 3.50.
4. Scores in at least the upper one–quarter on the verbal section of the GRE General Test and on the GRE Subject Test in History.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have a total score of 580 (paper version) or 237 (computer version) or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 (paper version) or 21 (computer version) and have the approval of the English Language Center.
2. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the Michigan English Language Assessment Battery with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
3. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the English Language Center Test with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.

Guidance Committee

Before completing 8 credits in history courses, the student, with the assistance of the Graduate Director, must constitute a guidance committee of at least two faculty members in the Department of History who represent different fields of history. Until the student's guidance committee has been established, the student's program of study must be approved by the Graduate Director.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in History

The program is available under both Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree under either Plan A or Plan B. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's guidance committee. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

Requirements for Both Plan A and Plan B

1. Complete HST 803 Seminar in Methodology of Historical Research (3 credits).
2. Complete at least 15 credits in 800-900 level history courses including one 3 credit course in historiography relevant to the student's program of study.

ARTS AND LETTERS

Department of History

3. Demonstrate the ability to read historical literature in one foreign language. Credits in courses in foreign language may not be counted toward the requirements for the Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy in History degree programs.

Additional Requirements for Plan A

1. Complete 6 credits of HST 899 Master's Thesis Research.
2. Pass a final oral examination that covers the student's program of study and thesis.

Additional Requirements for Plan B

1. Pass a certifying examination, consisting of three parts, one testing the major area and two tests in each of the student's minor areas.

Academic Standards

A student who does not demonstrate a reading knowledge of a foreign language during the first year of enrollment in the program will not be permitted to enroll in any courses with the exception of courses in a foreign language, until that requirement has been satisfied.

Doctor of Philosophy

The program leading to the doctoral degree with a major in history is designed to provide wide knowledge in several fields of history, specialized competence in a limited area, and research techniques that will prepare the student for a career in teaching, research, government service, private industry, and other areas of professional historical activity.

The following fields of study are available to doctoral students in the department:

- Ancient history
- Medieval history
- Early modern European history
- Modern Western European history
- Russian history
- East European history
- American history
- African–American history
- History of the Atlantic world
- Latin American and Caribbean history
- Comparative Black history
- African history
- Asian history
- The history of women and gender relations

The department recognizes the high importance of developing among its doctoral candidates a proficiency in college teaching. To the limit of its resources, it undertakes to provide experience in teaching in the form of graduate assistantships, along with organized discussions of the ends and means of the teaching career.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

Students are admitted to the program for Fall semester only. The department must receive all application materials by January 1. Decisions on admission are announced on or shortly after March 31. In making admissions decisions, the department considers the competencies of the faculty and the needs of students and the profession.

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in history, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and the Subject Test in History forwarded to the department.
2. Submit a term paper to the department that the applicant considers to be a fair representation of his or her ability in research and writing.
3. Include in a letter required by the College a 500-1000 word statement that addresses the applicant's goals in pursuing a Doctor of Philosophy degree in history.
4. Have at least three individuals, preferably scholars with whom the applicant has had course work or other professional contact, submit letters of recommendation to the department.

To be admitted to the program with regular status, an applicant must demonstrate the appropriate reading and/or speaking knowledge in one foreign language relevant to the student's doctoral study. Applicants without a master's degree or 30 credits of approved course work, including History 803 or its equivalent; significant course work in historiography and content in the major field; and two minor areas of concentration; will be admitted provisionally. The graduate director and/or adviser will advise students regarding the removal of deficiencies and the completion of a specified number of collateral courses before regular admission to the Ph.D. in History is granted. Applicants completing these pre-Ph.D. courses will acquire a graduate academic record equivalent to the course requirements of the Master of Arts in History.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have a total score of 580 (paper version) or 237 (computer version) or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 (paper version) or 21 (computer version) and have the approval of the English Language Center.
2. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the Michigan English Language Assessment Battery with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
3. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the English Language Center Test with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.

Applicants for doctoral study should understand that the department can offer no assurance that all of the areas of professional specialization will be available to students at any particular time. It is essential that persons with specific, clearly defined academic interests communicate with the Graduate Director before making firm plans to enroll in the doctoral program.

Guidance Committee

Students entering the doctoral program will be guided by the graduate director in the selection of courses for the first year. By the end of the second semester, students should choose their major professor and their guidance committee. The committee shall consist of at least four members: two represent the student's major field, one of whom shall chair the student's guidance committee and direct the dissertation. In addition, two faculty members, one from each of the student's chosen two minor fields, will serve on the committee.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in History

The student must:

1. Complete at least 3 credits in the historiography courses specified by the graduate adviser or guidance committee.
2. Complete at least 9 credits in additional 800-900 level courses in a major field of history as specified by the student's guidance committee. The major field should be the field in which the student plans to focus research for the dissertation. The available major fields of history are referenced above.
3. Complete at least 6 credits in each of the student's two minor fields or in one minor field of history and in one minor field in a related discipline.
4. Student must demonstrate knowledge of a second foreign language before they may take the comprehensive examinations. This requirement for students formally admitted to the Ph.D. program can be fulfilled by one of these three options:
 - a. Competency in an additional (second) foreign language.
 - b. With approval of the student's guidance committee, the student may substitute certification in humanities computing for the second foreign language.
 - c. With the approval of the student's guidance committee, the student may complete courses in a supporting discipline such as statistics, philosophy, economics, or anthropology in lieu of demonstrating knowledge of a second foreign language. The supporting discipline shall constitute the student's third minor field. A faculty member in the supporting discipline shall be added as a fifth member of the student's guidance committee.
5. Pass the following comprehensive examinations:
 - a. A 3-4 hour written examination in the student's major field and a 3-4 hour written examination in each of the student's minor fields. This requirement must be satisfied during one semester of enrollment in the program and should be completed during the fifth semester.
 - b. An oral examination of up to three hours. This requirement must be satisfied after the student has passed the written examinations.
 - c. Pass a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation.

Academic Standards

A student who does not demonstrate a reading knowledge of a foreign language during the first year of enrollment in the program will not be permitted to enroll in any courses, with the exception of courses in a foreign language, until that requirement has been satisfied.

HISTORY-SECONDARY SCHOOL TEACHING

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in history-secondary school teaching is designed specifically for secondary school teachers and is a terminal degree program.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in history-secondary school teaching on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree with a major in history or in another field.
2. A grade-point average of at least 3.00 in the junior and senior years of the baccalaureate program.
3. A minimum of 20 semester credits in history courses with a grade-point average of at least 3.00.
4. One year of experience teaching history in a secondary school.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have a total score of 580 or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
2. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the Michigan English Language Assessment Battery with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
3. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the English Language Center Test with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.

Guidance Committee

Before completing 9 credits in history courses, the student, with the assistance of the Graduate Director and the History Education Adviser, must constitute a guidance committee of at least two faculty members in the Department of History who represent different fields of history. Until the student's guidance committee has been established, the student's program of study must be approved by the Graduate Director and the History Education Adviser.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in History-Secondary School Teaching

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's guidance committee. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

HISTORY—URBAN STUDIES

Master of Arts

The Department of History offers an interdepartmental Master of Arts degree program in history–urban studies.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the major in history–urban studies, students must meet the requirements for admission to the Master of Arts degree program with a major in history. They must also meet the requirements for admission as specified in the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Programs in Urban Studies in the Graduate Education section of this catalog.

Guidance Committee

The faculty member in the Department of History who directs the student's thesis (Plan A) or research paper (Plan B), one other faculty member in the Department of History who represents a second field of history, and one member of the urban studies faculty who is not a faculty member in the Department of History shall serve on the student's guidance committee.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in History–Urban Studies

Students who are admitted to the major in history–urban studies must meet the requirements for the major in history leading to the Master of Arts degree. They must also meet the requirements for the urban studies component of the program as specified in the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Programs in Urban Studies.

The program is available under both Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree under either Plan A or Plan B.

All students who are enrolled in the program are required to complete History 813 as one of the three urban studies core courses that are required for the urban studies component of the program. The 3 credits of History 813 partially satisfy requirement 1. under the heading Requirements for Both Plan A and Plan B in the statement on the Master of Arts degree program with a major of history.

With reference to the history component of the program:

1. for a student under Plan A, the completion of 6 credits of History 899 partially satisfies the requirements for both the history and urban studies components of the program.
2. a student under Plan B must satisfy requirement 1. Under the heading Requirements for Both Plan A and Plan B in the statement on the Master of Arts degree program with a major in history in addition to any credits in such courses that are to be used to satisfy the internship or additional course work requirement for the urban studies component of the program.

The student is required to complete Sociology 838 and Urban Planning 848 in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the urban studies component of the program. The completion of those courses also satisfies the minor field related to history that is required for the history component of the program.

To satisfy the research methods requirement of the urban studies component of the program, the student must complete a course from a list of approved courses that is available from the Department of History.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Department of History offers an interdepartmental Doctor of Philosophy degree program in history–urban studies.

Admission

To be admitted to the major in history–urban studies, students must meet the requirements for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program with a major in history. They must also meet the requirements for admission as specified in the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Programs in Urban Studies in the Graduate Education section of this catalog.

Guidance Committee

At least three members of the student's guidance committee must be faculty members in the Department of History.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in History–Urban Studies

Students who are admitted to the major in history–urban studies must meet the requirements for the major in history leading to the Doctor of Philosophy degree. They must also meet the requirements for the urban studies component of the program as specified in the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Programs in Urban Studies.

At the discretion of the student's guidance committee, the research methods courses that are required for the urban studies component of the program may also constitute the courses in a supporting discipline that may be completed in lieu of demonstrating a reading knowledge of a second foreign language for the history component of the program.

DEPARTMENT of LINGUISTICS and GERMANIC, SLAVIC, ASIAN and AFRICAN LANGUAGES

David K. Prestel, Chairperson

The department offers undergraduate and graduate degree programs in German, Linguistics, and Russian as well as an undergraduate degree program in East Asian languages and cultures and a graduate program in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL). In addition, instruction is offered in Arabic, Hausa, Hebrew, Japanese, and Swahili, and in several other African languages.

Students study Linguistics, TESOL, Chinese, German, Russian or other languages as a part of their humanistic education or as a tool for professions in scientific research, government service, foreign trade or advanced scholarship. Several programs within the department lead to degrees representing different kinds and levels of competence in a particular language and literature. Within the framework of course offerings and the needs and interests of students, broad flexibility is possible. Although the programs are designed primarily to develop knowledge of the language and literature and an awareness of critical and scholarly approaches, outside fields of specialization are possible where appropriate in such areas as computer science, language pedagogy, linguistics, comparative literature, or medieval studies. The department's goal is to produce well-rounded graduates who combine traditional training with the skills needed in modern school systems, colleges, and universities. In both courses and seminars individual research is encouraged.

Students who wish to continue a language which they have previously studied in high school take a placement examination in order to determine the level at which they should enter the departmental program.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

EAST ASIAN LANGUAGES and CULTURES

Students in the Bachelor of Arts degree program with a major in East Asian Languages and Cultures complete a concentration in either Chinese or Japanese consistent with their interests and educational and career goals. The major in East Asian Languages and Cultures may be combined with a major in any one of a number of other fields.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in East Asian Languages and Cultures

b. Cognate Requirement: One 12-credit cognate in the field of European Studies, including History 205 or 206.	12

Additional Major in German

This option is designed to encourage students to combine a major in German with a major in another field such as international relations, political science, English, another foreign language, or hotel and restaurant management. Students electing this option

ARTS AND LETTERS

Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages

must meet the requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree and must complete the following requirements for the major in German:

1. The German courses listed in items 3. a. (1) through (4) under the heading Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in German above (26 credits).
2. The completion of a major in addition to German satisfies one of the cognates required by the College of Arts and Letters.

LINGUISTICS

Linguistics is the scientific study of the nature of human language and the characteristics of particular languages. It is a field with close ties to many areas of study, such as English, foreign languages, psychology, sociology, anthropology, philosophy, history, mathematics, and speech and language pathology; majors may emphasize any one or more of these areas.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Linguistics

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Linguistics.
The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Linguistics major is met by completing Linguistics 499. That course is referenced in item 3. a. (2) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree.
The courses that are used to satisfy requirement 3. b. referenced below may also be counted toward the College's foreign language and cognate requirements. If the courses that are used to satisfy requirement 3. b. are counted toward one of the cognates that the College requires, the second cognate must be in a field outside of the College of Arts and Letters.
3. The following requirements for the major:

CREDITS
30 to 38

- a. The following Linguistics courses:
 - (1) One of the following courses (3 or 4 credits):
 - LIN 200 Introduction to Language 3

Students who elect the East Asian languages and cultures, German, or Russian disciplinary major, or the German, Japanese, or Russian disciplinary minor, must contact the Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

GRADUATE STUDY

Students who are enrolled in master's or doctoral degree programs in the Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages may elect an Interdepartmental Specialization in Cognitive Science. For additional information, refer to the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Specializations in Cognitive Science in the College of Social Science section of this catalog and contact the Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages.

ADULT LANGUAGE LEARNING

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree in Adult Language Learning is specifically designed for students who seek or expect a career in foreign language learning and teaching of adults. Unique nationally in its focus on adult language learning, the program is suitable particularly for students who prefer more professional and practical content and less linguistics or literature and language content. Students enrolled in this program will prepare to contribute and adapt to rapidly maturing possibilities in computer-assisted instruction and internet-based distance instruction.

In addition to the requirements of the University, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in adult language learning, an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the department.
2. Include in the letter required by the College a 500-700 word statement of purpose and summary of academic background. This should be sent to the department.

To be admitted to the program with regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A grade-point average of at least 3.20 in courses completed in the last two years of the baccalaureate degree program.
2. Completed an introductory survey course in linguistics.
3. Completed at least two years of study in a foreign language at the college level.

Provisional Admission

Persons who have not met the requirements for regular admission as specified above may be admitted to the program provisionally and will be required to complete collateral courses before being recommended for regular status. The student's guidance committee must approve the collateral course work. A student who has not completed an introductory survey course in linguistics must enroll in Linguistics 401 during the first semester of enrollment in the program. A student who has not completed at least two years of study in a foreign language at the college level must enroll in a foreign language course during the first semester of enrollment in the program.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Adult Language Learning

The program is available under both Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). Plan A requires a minimum of 31 credits whereas Plan B requires a minimum of 30 credits for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's guidance committee. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

² Only one of the following courses may be used to satisfy requirement 2.b.(2): Linguistics 424, 434, 437, or 471.

Doctor of Philosophy

The doctoral program in German studies is a specialized program which is designed to prepare students for academic careers involving original research and quality teaching. Normally three academic years of full-time study beyond the master's degree are needed to complete the requirements for this program. It is expected that the first two years of study will be devoted to course work.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in German an applicant must:

1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the department.
2. Include in the letter required by the College a 500-word statement of purpose and summary of academic background.
3. Submit to the department his or her master's thesis or an equivalent major paper.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have 30 credits of approved graduate course work in linguistics, pedagogy, cultural studies, and literary studies comparable to the course work required for MSU's Master of Arts degree program with a major in German.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in German Studies

The student must:

1. Complete at least 24 credits in courses approved by the guidance committee while enrolled in the doctoral degree program and distributed as follows:
 - a. At least six courses in a primary area of concentration: German cultural studies or German language studies.
 - b. At least two courses in a secondary area of concentration: German cultural studies or German language studies.
2. Demonstrate reading proficiency in one language other than German or English appropriate to the student's research.
3. Pass written and oral doctoral comprehensive examinations within one semester of the academic year. The examinations, which will be administered by the student's guidance committee, will be based on the student's course work and individualized reading list. With approval of the guidance committee, the student may substitute a presentation given at a recognized professional meeting, an article suitable for publication in a recognized professional journal, or a similar public demonstration of professional competence for one part of the comprehensive examination.

a. Written comprehensive examination:

- For students whose primary area of concentration is German cultural studies, the written comprehensive examination will consist of the following parts:
- (1) longitudinal, diachronic examination of a major issue in German cultural studies
 - (2) synchronic exploration of a major issue in German cultural studies
 - (3) exploration of methodological and theoretical issues and their application
 - (4) one topic from German language studies

For students whose primary area of concentration is German language studies, the written comprehensive examination will consist of the following four parts:

- (1) synchronic German linguistics
- (2) historical Germanic linguistics
- (3) theoretical or applied linguistics
- (4) one topic from German cultural studies

For students who elect to complete a primary area of concentration in German cultural studies and a primary area of concentration in German language studies in lieu of a primary area of concentration and a secondary area of concentration, the written comprehensive examination will consist of the following four parts:

- (1) two of the following areas:
 - (a) longitudinal, diachronic examination of a major issue in German cultural studies
 - (b) synchronic exploration of a major issue in German cultural studies
 - (c) exploration of methodological and theoretical issues and their application
- (2) two of the following areas:
 - (a) synchronic German linguistics
 - (b) historical Germanic linguistics
 - (c) theoretical or applied linguistics

ARTS AND LETTERS

Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages

- b. Oral comprehensive examination: a two-hour oral examination based on the written comprehensive examination.

- 2. Pass a written final certifying examination in an area of applied or theoretical linguistics.

LINGUISTICS

Master of Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in linguistics, an applicant must:

- 1. Have the results of the Graduate Record Examination General Test forwarded to the department.

SCHOOL of MUSIC

James B. Forger, Director

The School of Music offers undergraduate programs leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Arts, and graduate programs leading to the degrees of Master of Music, Master of Arts, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Musical Arts.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

The School of Music offers undergraduate programs leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Arts. All of those programs have been accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music.

In addition to meeting the requirements for admission to the University, acceptance into an undergraduate program in the School of Music requires satisfactory performance on a major instrument or in voice as determined by audition.

Transfer credit in music theory and music performance is validated by examination. Transfer credit in other music courses must have the approval of the School of Music.

COMPOSITION AND MUSIC THEORY

The Bachelor of Music degree program in composition and music theory is designed for students who are interested in obtaining an introduction to the technique of composition and for students who are preparing for advanced study in composition, music theory, or musicology.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Music Degree in Composition and Music Theory

- The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Music degree in Composition and Music Theory. The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Composition and Music Theory major is met by completing Music 381. That course is referenced in item 3. b. below.
- The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Music degree.
- The following requirements for the major:

a. Capstone experience. One of the following two options: CREDITS

Option One
 Preparation and direction of a half-hour recital of original compositions during the senior year. Compositions for several performing media should be included in the recital. The student must demonstrate a command of compositional technique to the satisfaction of the appropriate faculty.

Option Two
 Produce a substantial analytical paper which reflects current scholarship in the field and the student's own independent perspective. A student selecting Option Two must complete, in the fourth or last year of study, one credit of Music 490, guided by a faculty member in the area of music theory.

The successful completion of Option One or Option Two satisfies the capstone experience requirement for the composition and music theory major.

JAZZ STUDIES

The Bachelor of Music in Jazz Studies is a professional degree program. It includes the common core courses of all other Bachelor of Music degree programs and the shared objectives of musical literacy, development of aural skills, understanding of a broad repertoire, and attainment of analytical skills. Uniquely, this program seeks to develop a high level of competency in jazz performance, and in compositional, scoring, and arranging skills. It also strives to prepare individuals to understand the literature and historical and cultural context of jazz.

MUSIC EDUCATION

The Bachelor of Music in Music Education provides for the comprehensive training of music teachers. It allows students to develop a program of study tailored to their interests and needs as teachers. Students are encouraged to develop their musicianship through ensembles, private lessons, conducting classes, the creative musicianship component, and a wide variety of instrumental and voice classes. Students develop their skills as educators in courses that begin in the freshman year and culminate in a student teaching/professional development semester. Graduates of this program will be able to plan, implement, and assess music instruction in a variety of instructional settings and for a variety of student populations.

The B.M. in Music Education degree leads to music teacher certification by the State of Michigan in grades K-12. To be recommended for certification, persons must complete all course requirements and any additional standards or tests set forth by the Department of Teacher Education or the Michigan Department of Education.

MUSIC PERFORMANCE

The Bachelor of Music degree in music performance requires concentrated study in one of the following five performance areas: piano, stringed instruments, wind instruments, percussion instruments, or voice. Students who select stringed instruments or wind instruments as their performance area choose one instrument as their major instrument.

Students who do not meet the minimal standards of musicianship of the School of Music may need to be enrolled in the bachelor's degree program in music performance more than the usual four years in order to qualify for a degree.

A piano pedagogy option is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in the bachelor's degree program in music performance with piano as the performance area.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Music Degree in Music Performance

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTIONS

For teacher certification, the disciplinary major in music education and the disciplinary minors in music theory and literature (for music majors) and school music (for non-music majors) are available. Students who elect this disciplinary major or these disciplinary minors must contact the School of Music.

Admission as a Junior

To be eligible for consideration for admission as a junior to the teacher certification program with a disciplinary major in music education, the student must:

1. Have submitted a completed application for admission to advanced standing in music education to the School of Music.
2. Have submitted a completed application for admission to the teacher certification program to the Office of Student Affairs, College of Education during the fall semester of the sophomore year.
3. Be enrolled in or have completed all of the following courses with a grade-point average of 2.5 or higher: Music 141, 142, 177, 180, 181, 182, 183, 211, 277, 280, and 282.
4. Have been interviewed by a member of the music education faculty, who will assess the candidate's verbal communication skills, thoughtfulness and depth of responses, and experience relevant to music teaching.
5. Meet the minimum requirements for admission to the teacher certification program, as specified in the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.
6. The music education faculty will also solicit written evaluations of the student's academic and musical performance and potential from the student's music performance instructor, major ensemble director, and Music 177 instructor.

For information on other requirements for teacher certification, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

Descriptions of the degree programs, organized by fields of study in alphabetical order, are presented below.

All of the graduate degree programs offered by the School of Music have been accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music. The Master of Music degree program in music therapy has been approved by the National Association for Music Therapy, Inc.

For additional information about graduate programs in the School of Music, contact the Associate Director for Graduate Studies.

School of Music Requirements for the Master of Arts and Master of Music Degrees

Admission

Applicants must meet the general requirements for consideration for admission to master's and doctoral degree programs in the College of Arts and Letters referenced in the College statement.

To be admitted to a master's degree program in the school on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A minimum cumulative grade-point average of 2.80 for the undergraduate program of study, as well as have met the College requirements for admission to a master's degree program.
2. Received the approval of the faculty in the applicant's area of specialization.

Master's Orientation Examinations

All students who are admitted to master's degree programs in the School of Music must take the written master's orientation examination in music theory. The results of this examination are used to place students in music theory courses. Based on the results of this examination, a student may be required to complete two collateral courses in music theory, Music 200 and 201, in addition to meeting the requirements for a master's degree.

All students who are admitted to the Master of Music degree program in music education in the School of Music must also take the written master's orientation examination in music education.

Each student must take the orientation examination in music theory, and the orientation examination in music education if required, before the first day of classes of the student's first semester of enrollment in the program.

For additional information about the orientation examinations in music theory and music education, contact the Associate Director for Graduate Studies.

Oral Final Certifying Examination

All students in master's degree programs in the school are required to pass an oral final certifying examination. Oral final certifying examinations are given during Fall and Spring semesters, and may be given during a Summer session with the approval of the Associate Director for Graduate Studies and every member of the student's examining committee.

Academic Standards

A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in courses that are to be counted toward the degree.

All deficiencies with regard to orientation examinations or entrance requirements, whether stated in terms of credits, courses, or performance standards, must be removed before the oral final certifying examination that is required for the master's degree is scheduled.

If the student fails the oral final certifying examination, the student shall be allowed to retake the examination only once, during the next Fall or Spring semester.

Transfer Credits

School of Music Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts and Doctor of Philosophy Degrees

Admission

Applicants must meet the general requirements for consideration for admission to master's and doctoral degree programs in the College of Arts and Letters referenced in the College statement.

To be admitted to a doctoral degree program in the school on regular status, an applicant must have received the approval of the faculty in the applicant's area of specialization.

Doctoral Orientation Examinations

The primary purpose of the doctoral orientation examinations is to aid the student's academic adviser and guidance committee in planning the student's program of study.

All students who are admitted to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program with a major in music education must take the written doctoral orientation examination in music education.

All students who are admitted to doctoral degree programs in the School of Music other than music education must take the written doctoral orientation examinations in music history and music theory.

For students who enter doctoral programs in the Summer session and Fall semester, the examinations in music history, music theory, and music education are given before the first day of classes of Fall semester. Students who enter doctoral programs in the Spring semester should contact the Associate Director for Graduate Studies to learn when the examinations will be offered.

For additional information about doctoral orientation examinations in music history, music theory, and music education, contact the Associate Director for Graduate Studies.

Guidance Committee

For students who are enrolled in the Doctor of Philosophy degree program with a major in music education: The student's major professor, two other faculty members in the area of music education, and one faculty member from another area of the School of Music must be members of the student's guidance committee.

For students who are enrolled in the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program with majors in music composition, music conducting, and music performance, see the statements on those programs in the sections that follow.

For students who are enrolled in doctoral degree programs in the School of Music other than music composition or music conducting or music education or music performance: The student's major professor, one faculty member in the area of music theory, and one faculty member in the area of music history must be members of the student's guidance committee.

Comprehensive Examinations

All students who are enrolled in the Doctor of Philosophy degree program with a major in music education are required to take a comprehensive examination in the field of music education.

For students who are enrolled in the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program with majors in music composition, music conducting, and music performance, see the statements on those programs in the sections that follow.

All students who are enrolled in doctoral degree programs in the School of Music other than music composition or music conducting or music education or music performance are required to take comprehensive examinations in the fields of music history and music theory.

The comprehensive examinations are given during Fall and Spring semesters, and may be given during the Summer session at the discretion of the faculty in the areas of music history, music theory, and music education.

Final Oral Examination

The Dean of the College of Arts and Letters appoints a faculty member in the College to read the student's dissertation, composition, or scholarly paper or abstract; to question the student during the final oral examination or following the performance of the lecture–recital for the student's guidance committee; and to participate in the evaluation of the student's performance. However, that faculty member serves on the student's examining committee without vote.

The dissertation, composition, or scholarly paper or abstract on which the final oral examination is based, or the scholarly paper that is related to the lecture–recital, must be submitted to the Associate Director for Graduate Studies no later than five weeks before the final oral examination or the lecture–recital may be scheduled. The dissertation, composition, or scholarly paper or abstract on which the final oral examination is based, or the scholarly paper that is related to the lecture–recital, must be submitted to all of the members of the student's guidance committee, supplemented by a faculty member in the College who is appointed by the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, no later than three weeks before the final oral examination is held or the lecture–recital is performed for the committee. Final oral examinations and performances of lecture–recitals are given during Fall and Spring semesters, and may be given during a Summer session with the approval of the Associate Director for Graduate Studies and every member of the student's committee.

Academic Standards

Any deficiencies in a given area must be removed before the student may enroll in graduate level courses in that area.

School of Music Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree

Should the student's guidance committee fail to accept the dissertation or the student's performance on the final oral examination, the student shall be allowed to rewrite the dissertation or to retake the examination only once. The dissertation must be rewritten or the examination must be retaken within one year, during a Fall or Spring semester.

MUSIC COMPOSITION

Master of Music

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music composition, an applicant must submit to the School of Music at least two original compositions representative of the applicant's creative work. Audio or video tape recordings of performances of those compositions may be submitted.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree in music composition from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in music composition that are required for the Bachelor of Music degree in composition and music theory at Michigan State University or their equivalents.

Requirements for the Master of Music Degree in Music Composition

The program is available only under Plan A, for which an original composition is required in lieu of a thesis. A total of 33 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's academic adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

	CREDITS
1. Complete all of the following courses (21 credits):

Either Music 970 or 971, but not both of those courses, may be used to satisfy the requirements referenced in item 3. a.
Either Music 972 or 973, but not both of those courses, may be used to satisfy the requirements referenced in item 3. a.
Philosophy 474 may be counted toward the requirements for the degree only if it is taught by a faculty member in the School of Music.
4. Complete 4 credits in music performance at the 800–900 level.
5. Participate in music activities during 2 semesters of enrollment in the program. The activities must be approved by the student's academic adviser and must be selected from chamber music, chorus, jazz band, orchestra, and wind ensemble.

Doctor of Musical Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in music composition, an applicant must submit two original compositions to the School of Music. Audio or video tape recordings of performances of those compositions may be submitted.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have a master's degree in music composition from a recognized educational institution or a total of 30 credits of approved course work.

Guidance Committee

A faculty member in the area of music composition must serve as the chairperson of the student's guidance committee. One additional faculty member in the area of music composition, one faculty member in the area of music theory, and one faculty member in the area of music history must also be members of the student's guidance committee.

Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree in Music Composition

Each student in the program has a major professor who provides instruction in music composition, oversees the preparation of the original composition, and oversees the final oral examination based upon that composition.

The student must:

1. Complete the courses in music composition, music theory, and music history that are specified by the student's guidance committee.
2. Complete any cognate area and related courses that are specified by the student's guidance committee.
3. Pass the written comprehensive examinations in the fields of music history and music theory.
4. Complete the following requirements in lieu of 24 credits of Music 999, a dissertation, and a final oral examination over the dissertation:
 - a. Complete 24 credits of Music 998.
 - b. Submit an original music composition. The composition must be acceptable to the student's guidance committee.

The student must have completed successfully all of the required course work (with the exception of Music 998), the comprehensive examinations, and the original composition before the final oral examination may be scheduled.

A copy of the composition referenced in item 4. above will be retained by the school as part of the permanent degree record.

Academic Standards

Doctoral study presumes continuing excellence in course work, reading, and writing. A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in courses that are to be counted toward the degree.

The student's original composition and the student's performance on the final oral examination based on the composition must be approved by the members of the student's guidance committee with not more than one dissenting vote. Should the committee fail to accept either the student's composition or the student's performance on the final oral examination based on the composition, the student shall be allowed to rewrite the composition or to repeat the final oral examination based on the composition only once. The composition must be rewritten or the examination must be retaken within one year, during a Fall or Spring semester.

MUSIC CONDUCTING

Master of Music

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

When applying for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music conducting, an applicant must specify one of the following three major areas: band conducting, choral conducting, or orchestral conducting.

To be considered for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music conducting, an applicant must present a live performance audition before a committee of faculty in conducting. With the approval of the faculty in an applicant's major area, an applicant may be considered for admission to the program on the basis of a high-quality tape recording of a recent performance, rather than on the basis of a live performance audition. An applicant must submit a VHS video tape recording showing a front view of the applicant conducting a minimum of 10 minutes. An applicant who submits a tape recording may be admitted only on provisional status pending the presentation of a live performance audition before a faculty committee in the applicant's major area. The audition must be presented before the end of the first semester of enrollment in the program. The audition must be in the major area of conducting that the applicant specifies.

To schedule an audition, an applicant should contact the School of Music Admissions Office. An applicant who selects the orchestral conducting area must obtain a list of required repertoire from the Director of Orchestras in the School of Music.

To be admitted to the Master of Music degree program in music conducting on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree in music from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in music that are required for a bachelor's degree in music from Michigan State University or their equivalents.
2. Presented a live performance audition that was acceptable to the committee of faculty in conducting.

 - c. Complete 1 to 4 credits in music performance at the 800–900 level.
 - d. Demonstrate a reading knowledge of German, French, or Italian. Credits in courses in a foreign language may not be counted toward the requirements for the Master of Music degree.
 - e. Participate in music activities during two semesters of enrollment in the program. The activities must be approved by the student's academic adviser and must involve orchestra.

Academic Standards

A grade of 3.0 or higher is required for Music 897.

Doctor of Musical Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

When applying for admission to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program with a major in music conducting, an applicant must specify one of the following three major areas: band conducting, choral conducting, or orchestral conducting.

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in music conducting, an applicant must present a live performance audition before a faculty committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music. With the approval of the faculty in an applicant's major area, an applicant may be considered for admission to the program on the basis of a high-quality tape recording of a recent performance, rather than on the basis of a live performance audition. An applicant must submit a VHS video tape recording showing a front view of the applicant conducting a minimum of 10 minutes. An applicant who submits a tape recording may be admitted only on provisional status pending the presentation of a live performance audition before a faculty committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music.

ARTS AND LETTERS
School of Music

The audition must be presented before the end of the first semester of enrollment in the program. As part of the audition, an applicant must present a 10-minute lecture on a topic related to conducting. The applicant may be asked to conduct a live performance group or to illustrate appropriate conducting techniques in relation to printed scores. The applicant may submit video and audio tape recordings or performances that he or she has conducted.

For additional information about the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in conducting, contact the Director of Bands, the Director of Choral Activities, or the Director of Orchestras in the School of Music.

To be admitted to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in music conducting on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A master's degree in music from a recognized educational institution or a total of 30 credits of approved course work.
2. Presented a live performance audition that was acceptable to the committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music.

Guidance Committee

The Associate Director for Graduate Studies or his or her designee must be a member of the student's guidance committee and must serve as its chairperson.

At least two faculty members in the student's conducting area, one faculty member in the area of music theory, and one faculty member in the area of musicology must also be members of the student's guidance committee.

Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree in Music Conducting

Each student in the program has a major professor who provides instruction in the student's major area, oversees the musical content of the student's program guides the preparation of required conducting appearances, oversees the preparation of the scholarly paper or abstract, and oversees the final oral examination. Normally, the student studies with the major professor for four semesters.

The student must:

1. Complete 10 to 12 credits from the following courses:

MUS 958A Seminar in Band Conducting	1 to 12
MUS 958B Seminar in Orchestral Conducting	1 to 12
MUS 958C Seminar in Choral Conducting	1 to 12
2. Complete 12 to 15 credits in musicology and music theory combined, as specified by the student's guidance committee. The student must complete at least 6 credits in each of these areas.
3. Complete at least 6 credits of electives as specified by the student's guidance committee.
4. Pass written comprehensive examinations that are administered by the student's guidance committee:
 - a. a music theory examination taken on the MSU campus.
 - b. three additional examinations. One of these examinations will involve musicology in relation to conducting, and the other two of these examinations will be related to the student's area of conducting. One of these examinations will be taken on the MSU campus, and the other two examinations will be take-home examinations.
5. Complete the following requirements in lieu of 24 credits of Music 999, a doctoral dissertation, and a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation:
 - a. Complete 24 credits of Music 997.
 - b. Direct various ensembles on four different programs containing repertoire which demonstrates the ability to program creatively, to execute music in various period styles and forms, and to work effectively with diverse groups.

Performing groups for the required conducting appearances may be ensembles from the School of Music, or any school, church, or community musical ensemble able to meet the demands of the repertoire.

Two of the first three conducting appearances must be presented within six calendar months of each other. The first three conducting appearances will be graded by the major professor and by at least one other faculty member in the student's major area.

The fourth conducting appearance must involve a complete program. This appearance will be graded by all of the members of the student's guidance committee with the exception of the Associate Director for Graduate Studies.

Every conducting appearance must be video taped in the format specified by the student's major professor.

With the prior approval of the student's major professor, any of the four required conducting appearances may take place off campus. In the event that a conducting appearance is off campus, the appearance will be graded on the basis of the video tape recording of the appearance.

- c. Submit a scholarly paper or abstract exhibiting a thorough understanding of a significant and relevant topic approved by the student's major professor and take a final oral examination of approximately two hours based on the paper or abstract.

The student must have completed successfully all of the required course work (with the exception of Music 997), the comprehensive examinations, the four conducting appearances, and the scholarly paper or abstract before the final oral examination may be scheduled.

A copy of the paper or abstract referenced in item 5. c. above will be retained by the school as part of the permanent degree record.

Academic Standards

Doctoral study presumes continuing excellence in course work, reading, and writing. A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in courses that are to be counted toward the degree.

The student's performance on the final oral examination and the scholarly paper or abstract on which the examination is based must be approved by the members of the student's guidance committee with not more than one dissenting vote. Should the committee fail to accept the final oral examination, or the paper or the abstract, the student shall be allowed to repeat the final oral examination, or to rewrite the paper or the abstract, only once. The examination must be retaken, or the paper or the abstract must be rewritten, within one year, during a Fall or Spring semester.

MUSIC EDUCATION

Master of Music

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Master of Music degree program in music education on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree in music education from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in music education that are required for the Bachelor of Music degree in instrumental music education, stringed instrument music education, or vocal-general music education at Michigan State University or their equivalents.

- Demonstrate competency in scholarship. This requirement must be met by writing and submitting for publication a scholarly paper on an aspect of music education and presenting the paper at an on-campus colloquium.

MUSIC PERFORMANCE

Master of Music

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

When applying for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music performance, an applicant must specify one of the following three broad performance areas that he or she wishes to pursue: instrumental music, instrumental specialist, or vocal music.

An applicant who selects the instrumental music area must also specify the major instrument or group of instruments (e.g., piano, harp, flute, or percussion instruments) from the categories listed below:

- Piano
- Stringed instruments: harp, violin, viola, cello, double bass
- Wind instruments: flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, bassoon, trumpet, horn, trombone, euphonium, tuba
- Percussion instruments

ARTS AND LETTERS
School of Music

An applicant who selects the instrumental specialist area must also specify one of the following three major specialties: brass instruments specialist, stringed instruments specialist, or woodwind instruments specialist. An applicant who selects brass instruments specialist must specify the major brass instrument and two secondary brass instruments. An applicant who selects stringed instruments specialist must specify the major stringed instrument and one secondary stringed instrument. An applicant who selects woodwind instruments specialist must specify the major woodwind instrument and three secondary woodwind instruments. (Refer to the categories listed above.)

To be considered for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music performance, an applicant must present a live performance audition before a committee of faculty in the applicant's broad performance area. For an applicant who has a Bachelor of Music degree in music performance from Michigan State University, the live performance audition may be waived at the discretion of the faculty in the applicant's major area. With the approval of the faculty in an applicant's major area, an applicant may be considered for admission to the program on the basis of a high-quality tape recording of a recent performance, rather than on the basis of a live performance audition. An applicant who selects the instrumental music, instrumental specialist, or vocal music area must submit either an audio or a video tape recording. An applicant who submits a tape recording may be admitted only on provisional status pending the presentation of a live performance audition before a faculty committee in the applicant's broad performance area. The audition must be presented before the end of the first semester of enrollment in the program and must meet the requirements that are specified below.

The requirements for the audition are specified below:

1. instrumental music: The audition must be on the major instrument or group of instruments that the applicant specifies.
2. instrumental specialist:
 - a. brass instruments specialist: The audition must be on the major brass instrument and on the two secondary brass instruments that the applicant specifies. If trombone is not the major instrument, it must be one of the secondary instruments.
 - b. stringed instruments specialist: The audition must be on the major stringed instrument and on the secondary stringed instrument that the applicant specifies. If the major instrument is violin or viola, the secondary instrument must be cello or double bass. If the major instrument is cello or double bass, the secondary instrument must be violin or viola.
 - c. woodwind instruments specialist: The audition must be on the major woodwind instrument and on one of the three secondary woodwind instruments that the applicant specifies.
3. vocal music: The audition must be in voice.

To schedule an audition, an applicant should contact the School of Music Admissions Office.

To be admitted to the Master of Music degree program in music performance on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree in music performance from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in music performance that are required for the Bachelor of Music degree in music performance from Michigan State University or their equivalents.

2. Presented a live performance audition that was acceptable to the committee of faculty in the broad performance area.

Academic Standards

A grade of 3.0 or higher is required for Music 896.

Doctor of Musical Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

When applying for admission to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program with a major in music performance, an applicant must specify one of the following two broad performance areas that he or she wishes to pursue: instrumental music or vocal music.

An applicant who selects the instrumental music area must also specify the major instrument or group of instruments (e.g., piano, harp, flute, or percussion instruments) from the categories listed below:

- Piano
- Stringed instruments: harp, violin, viola, cello, double bass
- Wind instruments: flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, bassoon, trumpet, horn, trombone, euphonium, tuba
- Percussion instruments

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in music performance, an applicant must present a live performance audition before a faculty committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music.

With the approval of the faculty in an applicant's major area, an applicant may be considered for admission to the program on the basis of a high-quality tape recording of a recent performance, rather than on the basis of a live performance audition. An applicant who selects the instrumental music or vocal music area must submit either an audio or a video tape recording. An applicant who submits a tape recording may be admitted only on provisional status pending the presentation of a live performance audition before a faculty committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music. The audition must be presented before the end of the first semester of enrollment in the program. The choice of music shall be determined by the area of music performance that the applicant plans to study. The audition must consist of at least a half hour of music and a 10-minute lecture covering the salient features of the music performed.

To be admitted to the Doctor of Musical Arts degree program in music performance on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A master's degree in music from a recognized educational institution or a total of 30 credits of approved course work.
2. Presented a live performance audition that was acceptable to the committee appointed by the Director of the School of Music.

Guidance Committee

The Associate Director for Graduate Studies or his or her designee must be a member of the student's guidance committee and must serve as its chairperson.

For a student who selects the first option to meet requirement 1. e. (2) or requirement 2. d. (2) under the heading Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree in Music Performance, the student's major professor, one faculty member from the area of musicology, and one faculty member from the area of music theory must be members of the student's guidance committee.

For a student who selects the second option to meet requirement 1. e. (2) or requirement 2. d. (2) under the heading Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree in Music Performance, the student's major professor, one faculty member from either the area of musicology or the area of music theory, and one additional faculty member from the School of Music must be members of the student's guidance committee. The faculty member must be from the same area as the student's comprehensive examination.

Requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree in Music Performance

The student must meet the requirements for one of the following two broad performance areas: instrumental music or vocal music.

1. Instrumental Music

Each student in the program has a major professor who provides instruction in the student's major instrument, oversees the musical content of the student's program, guides the preparation of required recitals, oversees the preparation of the scholarly paper, and oversees the final oral examination. Normally, the student studies with the major professor for four semesters.

The student must:

- a. Select a major instrument or group of instruments (e.g., piano, harp, flute, or percussion instruments) from the categories listed below:
 - Piano
 - Stringed instruments: harp, violin, viola, cello, double bass
 - Wind instruments: flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, bassoon, trumpet, horn, trombone, euphonium, tuba
 - Percussion instruments
- b. Complete the courses in music performance, music theory, and music history that are specified by the student's guidance committee.
- c. Complete any courses in one or more cognate areas that are specified by the student's guidance committee.

- d. Pass one or two written comprehensive examinations as specified in item 1. e. (2) below.
- e. Complete the following requirements in lieu of 24 credits of Music 999, a doctoral dissertation, and a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation:
- (1) Complete 24 credits of Music 996.
 - (2) Complete one of the following two options:
 - (a) Perform three public recitals which will be graded by a committee of faculty in the School of Music. Two of the recitals must be solo recitals which must be presented within two consecutive semesters, excluding summers. The third recital must be a chamber music recital. A tape recording of each of the three recitals is required. In addition, the student must pass comprehensive examinations in the areas of musicology and music theory.
 - (b) Perform four public recitals which will be graded by a committee of faculty in the School of Music. Three of the recitals must be solo recitals, two of which must be presented within two consecutive semesters, excluding summers. The fourth recital must be a chamber music recital. A tape recording of each of the four recitals is required. In addition, the student must pass a comprehensive examination in either the area of musicology or the area of music theory and complete 8 credits of course work in the other area.
 - (3) Complete one of the following two options:
 - (a) Submit a scholarly paper exhibiting a thorough understanding of the music to be presented in a lecture–recital and present a lecture–recital twice, first to the student's guidance committee and then to the public. In no case may the lecture–recital be presented publicly until it has been approved by the committee. A tape recording of the lecture–recital is required.
 - (b) With the unanimous consent of the student's guidance committee, submit a scholarly paper of major scope, comparable to a traditional dissertation, and take a final oral examination based on the paper.

The student must have completed successfully all of the required course work (with the exception of Music 996), the comprehensive examination(s), the required public recitals, and the scholarly paper before either the lecture–recital or the final oral examination may be scheduled.

A copy of the scholarly paper and the tape recordings of the required recitals will be retained by the school as part of the permanent degree record.

2. Vocal Music

Each student in the program has a major professor who provides instruction in voice, oversees the musical content of the student's program, guides the preparation of required recitals, oversees the preparation of the scholarly paper, and oversees the final oral examination. Normally, the student studies with the major professor for four semesters. The student must:

- a. Complete the courses in music performance, music theory, and music history that are specified by the student's guidance committee.
- b. Complete any courses in one or more cognate areas that are specified by the student's guidance committee.
- c. Pass one or two written comprehensive examinations as specified in item 2. d. (2) below.

- d. Complete the following requirements in lieu of 24 credits of Music 999, a doctoral dissertation, and a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation:
- (1) Complete 24 credits of Music 996.
 - (2) Complete one of the following two options:
 - (a) Perform three public recitals which will be graded by a committee of faculty in the School of Music. Two of the recitals must be solo recitals which must be presented within two consecutive semesters, excluding summers. The third recital must be a chamber music recital. A tape recording of each of the three recitals is required. In addition, the student must pass comprehensive examinations in the areas of musicology and music theory.
 - (b) Perform four public recitals which will be graded by a committee of faculty in the School of Music. Three of the recitals must be solo recitals, two of which must be presented within two consecutive semesters, excluding summers. The fourth recital must be a chamber music recital. A tape recording of each of the four recitals is required. In addition, the student must pass a comprehensive examination in either the area of musicology or the area of music theory and complete 8 credits of course work in the other area.
 - (3) Complete one of the following two options:
 - (a) Submit a scholarly paper exhibiting a thorough understanding of the music to be presented in a lecture–recital and present a lecture recital twice, first to the student's guidance committee and then to the public. In no case may the lecture–recital be presented publicly until it has been approved by the committee. A tape recording of the lecture–recital is required.
 - (b) With the unanimous consent of the student's guidance committee, submit a scholarly paper of major scope, comparable to a traditional dissertation, and take a final oral examination based on the paper.

The student must have completed successfully all of the required course work (with the exception of Music 996), the comprehensive examination(s), the required public recitals, and the scholarly paper before either the lecture–recital or the final oral examination may be scheduled.

A copy of the scholarly paper and the tape recordings of the required recitals will be retained by the school as part of the permanent degree record.

Academic Standards

Doctoral study presumes continuing excellence in course work, reading, and writing. A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in courses that are to be counted toward the degree.

The student's performance on the lecture–recital and the related scholarly paper, or the scholarly paper and the student's performance on the final oral examination based on the paper, must be approved by the members of the student's guidance committee with not more than one dissenting vote. Should the committee fail to accept either the student's performance on the lecture–recital and the related paper, or the paper and the student's performance on the final oral examination based on the paper, the student shall be allowed to repeat the performance of the lecture–recital or to rewrite the related paper, or to revise the scholarly paper or to repeat the final oral examination based on the paper, only once. The performance of the lecture–recital must be repeated or the paper must be rewritten or the examination must be retaken within one year, during a Fall or Spring semester.

ARTS AND LETTERS
School of Music

MUSIC THEORY

Master of Music

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the School of Music, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Music degree program in music theory, an applicant must submit to the School of Music:

1. A one–page, type–written statement, written in English, that addresses the applicant's interest in the field of music theory and in MSU's music theory program.
2. At least one type–written, scholarly paper of 10–20 pages, written in English, that focuses on an analysis of a specific composition or that discusses one aspect (e.g., form, harmony, or rhythm) of a particular composition or body of work.
3. At least one original music composition or musical arrangement, or two examples of compositional studies (e.g., counterpoint examples prepared for a course). A video or audio tape recording of a performance of the composition or arrangement may be submitted.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree in music theory from a recognized educational institution, or have completed the courses in music theory that are required for the Bachelor of Music degree in composition and music theory at Michigan State University or their equivalents.

Requirements for the Master of Music Degree in Music Theory

Stephen L. Esquith, Chairperson

Philosophy explores our most basic beliefs about the world and ourselves. Inquiry in philosophy grapples with such questions as 'Does anybody really know anything for sure?' 'How do we distinguish between right and wrong?' 'Do animals have rights?' 'Could a computer be conscious?' 'Should people be allowed to clone themselves?' 'Is there a God?' 'What is a just society?' 'What is oppression?'

In exploring such questions, philosophy strives to develop the ability to reason clearly, to distinguish between good and bad arguments, to navigate through a complicated maze of issues, to clarify puzzling concepts, and to use intelligence and logic in situations where there are fiercely opposing views and interests. Philosophy helps one understand and make reasoned choices of competing theories or points of view in a variety of controversies. Philosophy expands the student's horizons by enabling the student to see beyond the world as it presently exists and develop a disciplined and imaginative awareness of how things might be.

In their work philosophers connect with many other disciplines. Philosophy makes available to the student a significant portion of the world's great literature, and makes the student aware of the extent to which scientists, artists, poets, educators, and theologians have depended on the work of philosophers in the course of their own development. Philosophy places the study of such disciplines as the sciences, the arts, medicine, and the law within a broader intellectual perspective and provides logical and analytical tools for understanding them. Since philosophy can enter into so many different programs, philosophical studies are an intrinsic component of any liberal or professional education, and many philosophy students pursue an additional major or specialization.

GRADUATE STUDY

The Department of Philosophy offers graduate work leading to the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees. Both master's and doctoral students must fulfill broad distribution course requirements in philosophy and select an area within philosophy on which the master's thesis or paper or the doctoral dissertation is based. Examples of such areas are medical ethics, philosophy of language, philosophy of biology, social and political philosophy, feminist philosophy, African-American philosophy, continental philosophy, philosophy of mind, and ancient philosophy.

The Department of Philosophy encourages graduate students with interests in such areas as the biological sciences, health care, women's studies, ancient studies, critical theory, and linguistics to take a limited number of courses outside the department. The department also provides opportunities for course work for graduate students in other departments.

The Department of Philosophy is affiliated with the Doctor of Philosophy degree program with a major in ecology, evolutionary biology and behavior. For information about a Doctor of Philosophy degree program that involves ecology, evolutionary biology and behavior and a major in the Department of Philosophy, refer to the statement on the doctoral program in ecology, evolutionary biology and behavior in the College of Natural Science section of this catalog.

Students who are enrolled in the Master of Arts degree program in the Department of Philosophy may elect a Specialization in Ecology, Evolutionary Biology and Behavior. For additional information, refer to the statement on the specialization in the College of Natural Science section of this catalog.

Students who are enrolled in master's or doctoral degree programs in the Department of Philosophy may elect an Interdepartmental Specialization in Cognitive Science. For additional information, refer to the statement on Interdepartmental Graduate Specializations in Cognitive Science in the College of Social Science section of this catalog. For additional information, contact the Department of Philosophy.

Master of Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Master of Arts degree program in philosophy, an applicant must submit a paper that is representative of the applicant's philosophical abilities.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree in any field.
2. A grade–point average of at least 3.00 in at least 15 semester credits of philosophy courses.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of the catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have a total score of 580 (paper version) or 237 (computer version) or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 (paper version) or 21 (computer version) and have the approval of the English Language Center.
2. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the Michigan English Language Assessment Battery with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
3. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the English Language Center Test with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.

Students are usually admitted to the program for fall semester. Persons wishing to be considered for financial aid should submit all of their application materials by no later than December 31.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Philosophy

The program is available under both Plan A (with thesis) and Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree under either Plan A or Plan B. The student's program of study must be approved by the Associate Chairperson. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

Requirements for Both Plan A and Plan B

1. Complete 30 credits in courses at the 400 level or higher. At least 21 of the 30 credits must be in Philosophy courses, with not more than 8 credits in Philosophy 890. The 30 credits must be distributed as follows:
 - a. Three credits of Philosophy 800.
 - b. At least 3 credits in each of the following four areas of philosophy: history of philosophy, value theory, metaphysics and epistemology, and logic and philosophy of science. The credits and courses that are used to satisfy requirement 1. c. may also be used to satisfy requirement 1. b.

 - d. At least 9 credits in an area within philosophy related to the master's thesis or paper.
2. Pass an examination in logic or complete designated course work in logic as specified by the department.

Additional Requirements for Plan A

1. Complete at least 4, but not more than 8, credits of PHL 899 Master's Thesis Research.
2. Complete a bibliography and thesis acceptable to a committee of faculty.
3. Pass a public oral examination in defense of the thesis that is administered by a committee of faculty.

Additional Requirements for Plan B

1. Complete a bibliography and philosophical paper acceptable to a committee of faculty.
2. Pass an oral final examination that involves a public presentation and defense of the paper. The presentation must be acceptable to a committee of faculty.

The faculty member who directs the student's thesis (Plan A) or philosophical paper (Plan B) shall be a member of the committee. At least two members of the committee shall be faculty members in the Department of Philosophy. Faculty members from other departments may serve on the committee with the approval of the Associate Chairperson.

Academic Standards

Only those courses for which the student received a grade of 3.0 or higher may be used to satisfy the requirements for the degree.

A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in philosophy courses or courses taken for the purpose of satisfying degree requirements.

Doctor of Philosophy

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be considered for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in philosophy, an applicant must submit to the department a sample of the applicant's philosophical writing.

To be admitted to the program on regular status, an applicant must have a master's degree in philosophy or a total of 30 credits of graduate course work approved by the department.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of the catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have a total score of 580 (paper version) or 237 (computer version) or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 (paper version) or 21 (computer version) and have the approval of the English Language Center.
2. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the Michigan English Language Assessment Battery with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.
3. Have an average score of 85 or higher on the English Language Center Test with no subscore below 83 and have the approval of the English Language Center.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in Philosophy

The student must:

1. Complete at least 24 credits in courses at the 400 level or higher in addition to the credits earned in Philosophy 999. The 24 credits must be distributed as follows:
 - a. Three credits of Philosophy 801.
 - b. At least 3 credits in courses in each of the following four areas of philosophy: history of philosophy, value theory, metaphysics and epistemology, and logic and philosophy of science. The credits and courses that are used to satisfy requirement 1. c. may also be used to satisfy requirement 1. b.
 - c. At least 12 credits from the following courses: Philosophy 810, 820, 830, 840, 850, 860, 870, and 880. The 12 credits must include:
 - (1) at least 2 credits in the area of the dissertation.
 - (2) at least 2 credits in the minor field, different from the 2 credits in the area of the dissertation.
 - (3) at least 2 credits in each of two areas outside the dissertation and outside the minor field.
 - d. At least 9 credits in a disciplinary or interdisciplinary minor field outside the area of the dissertation.
2. Demonstrate a reading knowledge of one language other than English for which there is a substantial literature that is related to the student's program of study.
3. Complete a bibliography and prospectus for the dissertation.
4. Set a timetable for the completion of the dissertation acceptable to the student's guidance committee.

Academic Standards

Only those courses for which the student received a grade of 3.0 or higher may be counted toward the requirements for the degree. A student may accumulate no more than 6 credits with a grade below 3.0 in philosophy courses or courses taken for the purpose of satisfying degree requirements.

DEPARTMENT of RELIGIOUS STUDIES

_____, Chairperson

The courses in Religious Studies are designed for the student who wishes to become acquainted with the essential teachings, beliefs, and ethical outlooks of one or more major religious traditions; for such students as may be preparing for vocations for which a knowledge of religious thought, practices, and traditions is an appropriate preparation; and for those students who are interested in exploring this subject as a field of scholarly knowledge and human concern. Religious studies courses may be elected as single courses, in series of related courses, or in combinations of single courses and series to form either a major or a cognate field of study.

Religious studies credits may be applied as general elective credits in all University major programs, and as major credit in the Humanities—Prelaw and Interdisciplinary Humanities majors in the College of Arts and Letters and in the Interdisciplinary Studies in Social Science major in the College of Social Science.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Religious Studies

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Religious Studies. The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Religious Studies major is met by completing Religious Studies 499. That course is referenced in item 3. a. below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree. CREDITS
3. The following requirements for the major: 33 to 40
 - a. The following course (3 credits):

REL 499 Senior Thesis Research (W)	3
The completion of Religious Studies 499 satisfies the capstone course requirement for the major in Religious Studies.
 - b. Two of the following courses (7 or 8 credits):

REL 310 Judaism	4
REL 320 Christianity	3
REL 330 Islam	4
 - c. Two of the following courses (6 or 7 credits):

REL 340 Hinduism	4

 - f. Nine additional credits in 400-level Religious Studies courses, excluding Religious Studies 490.
 - g. Religious Studies electives: Additional credits in Religious Studies courses as needed to meet the requirement of at least 33, but not more than 40, credits in courses in the major, excluding 100-level courses and Religious Studies 290.

Religious Studies Cognates for Majors in Other Departments of the College of Arts and Letters

Nine or more credits in religious studies courses may be used as a cognate in other Arts and Letters majors, provided that such courses are elected in a reasonable and logical sequence.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTION

A religious studies disciplinary minor is available for teacher certification.

Students who elect the religious studies disciplinary minor must contact the Department of Religious Studies.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

GRADUATE STUDY

The Department of Religious Studies does not offer graduate programs. However, graduate level courses taken in the department may constitute a field of study in the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degree programs in the College of Arts and Letters and other colleges and may be used as a minor field in these programs when approved by the major professor or guidance committee and by this department.

DEPARTMENT of ROMANCE and CLASSICAL LANGUAGES

Deidre A. Dawson, Chairperson

In addition to being an integral part of a liberal education, knowledge of foreign languages and literatures is important in scientific research, advanced scholarship, teaching, government service, foreign trade, and international relations. It increases the pleasures of travel overseas and opens the door to new cultural experiences.

In the elementary courses (100 level), the department stresses the skills of understanding, speaking, reading, and writing the language. A well-equipped language laboratory aids in the development of these skills.

The intermediate courses (200 level) have a twofold purpose: further development of language skills, and general introduction to the culture of the countries where the language is spoken through the reading and discussion of a broad range of cultural materials including expository and literary texts.

The advanced courses (300–400 level and above) make it possible for students to pursue the formal study of language literature, linguistics and culture, and thus satisfy their specific needs and objectives.

The department offers instruction in French, Classical Greek, Italian, Latin, Portuguese, and Spanish language, literature, and culture. See the Descriptions of Courses section of the catalog for information about courses offered and eligibility for courses on the basis of high school foreign language study. Students with previous foreign language experience must take a placement test to continue study in that language at the appropriate level. The placement test is given at the beginning of each semester. Native speakers should not enroll in language–skill courses from the 100 through the 300 levels.

Courses in English dealing with foreign literatures and film are also offered and may be found in the Classical Studies (CLA) and Romance Languages (ROM) course listings.

SPN 412 Topics in Hispanic Culture 3
 SPN 420 Spain and its Literature 3
 SPN 432 Latin America and its Literature 3
 SPN 440 The Structure of Spanish 3
 SPN 492 Senior Writing Project 1

See the Department for an approved list of courses which may be used to substitute for Spanish 412.

The completion of Spanish 492 satisfies the capstone course requirement for the Spanish major. Spanish 492 will be waived for Spanish majors who study abroad or reside in La Casa (Residential Option in Spanish).

- (2) Three of the following courses (9 credits):
 - SPN 452 Topics in Spanish Language 3
 - SPN 462 Topics in Spanish Literature 3
 - SPN 472 Topics in the Literatures of the Americas 3
 - SPN 482 Topics in Spanish Linguistics 3
 Each course may be repeated for up to 9 credits.

- (3) Spanish electives: Additional credits in 400-level Spanish courses as needed to meet the requirement of at least 37, but not more than 40, credits in the major.

b. Intensive contact with Spanish is required in order to learn the language. Students majoring in Spanish are expected to study abroad for at least eight weeks, but should a student be unable to meet that expectation, one of the following options must be approved:

- (1) residence for at least one semester in La Casa, a center for cultural activities.
- (2) internship for at least eight weeks in a Spanish-speaking environment.
- (3) service learning for at least eight weeks in a Spanish-speaking environment.

Majors and teaching minors are strongly encouraged to take their second Integrative Studies in Arts and Humanities course in Spanish, if this option is available.

TEACHER CERTIFICATION OPTIONS

The following disciplinary majors leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree are available for teacher certification: French, Latin, and Spanish.

The following disciplinary minors are also available for teacher certification: French, Italian, Latin, and Spanish.

Students who elect one of the disciplinary majors or one of the disciplinary minors referenced above must contact the Department of Romance and Classical Languages.

For additional information, refer to the statement on TEACHER CERTIFICATION in the Department of Teacher Education section of this catalog.

GRADUATE STUDY

The Department of Romance and Classical Languages offers the programs listed below:

Master of Arts

- Applied Spanish Linguistics
- French
- Hispanic Literatures

Doctor of Philosophy

- French, Language and Literature
- Hispanic Cultural Studies

These programs are described in alphabetical order by major below. The programs are designed to meet the professional objectives and special interests of individual students.

With the approval of the Department of Romance and Classical Languages, a graduate student with a major in another department may pursue a minor in French, Italian, Latin, Spanish, or comparative literature. Ordinarily, a minor consists of a minimum of 9 credits in graduate courses for which the student has had suitable preparation.

APPLIED SPANISH LINGUISTICS

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts Degree in Applied Spanish Linguistics is designed for students who wish to pursue advanced work in Spanish linguistics and further develop their fluency in the Spanish language. In response to the growing importance of Spanish in the United States, this program provides a broad base in the structure, usage and development of modern Spanish. Thus, the degree is designed to suit the needs of future teachers and teachers already in service, as well as students with career goals other than teaching. With its strong foundation in linguistics, the MA in Applied Spanish Linguistics also serves as preparation for doctoral level work in theoretical or applied linguistics or language acquisition.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree in Applied Spanish Linguistics with regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree in Spanish or in Linguistics or a bachelor's-equivalent degree in Spanish philology (international students) with course work in Spanish at the 400-level.
2. Completion of Linguistics 401 and Spanish 425 or their equivalents.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Applied Spanish Linguistics

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the graduate adviser. The student must complete the requirements specified below.

	LIN 871 Advanced Studies in Sociolinguistics	3
4.	Demonstrate proficiency in another Romance language (e.g. French, Italian, or Portuguese) equivalent to more than two years of college foreign language course work. This may be fulfilled by successful completion of a 300-level course taught in the second Romance language or by scoring at the Intermediate level on a nationally-normed proficiency examination.
5.	Pass a final certifying examination based on course work and the departmental reading list for the Master of Arts Degree in Applied Spanish Linguistics.

FRENCH

Master of Arts

The Master of Arts degree program in French offers two options. Option I is designed primarily for students who plan to pursue a Doctor of Philosophy degree and to join the faculties of colleges or universities as scholars and teachers specializing in literature. Option II is designed primarily for students who plan to teach in community colleges or secondary schools, or who plan to specialize in linguistics, applied linguistics, cultural studies, or pedagogy. A student who selects either of the two options may apply for admission to the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in French, language and literature.

Students who are enrolled in the Master of Arts degree program in French are required to complete courses in French literature. The six traditional fields of French literature are listed below:

- Medieval literature and Old French language
- 16th-century literature
- 17th-century literature
- 18th-century literature
- 19th-century literature
- 20th-century literature

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in French on regular status, an applicant must have:

1. A bachelor's degree in French, or have completed the courses in French that are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in French at Michigan State University or their equivalents.
2. A grade-point average of at least 3.00 in undergraduate French language and literature courses.

Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in French

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the graduate adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

1. Complete one of the following two options:
 - a. Option I: Concentration in Literature (18 credits):
 - (1) At least one course at the 800 level or above in each of the six fields of French literature listed above (18 credits).
 - b. Option II: Concentration in Linguistics, Cultural Studies, and Pedagogy (24 credits):
 - (1) At least one course at the 800 level or above in each of four of the six fields of French literature listed above (12 credits).
 - (2) One of the following three options (12 credits):

 - c. Emphasis in Interdisciplinary Studies: Five three-hour examinations including:
 - (1) an examination in each of two of the six fields of French literature listed above.
 - (2) an examination in the student's cognate area related to French literature.
 - (3) two additional examinations, each of which must be in linguistics or pedagogy or cultural studies, or in a combination of these areas.
 - d. Emphasis in Comparative Literature: Five three-hour examinations including:
 - (1) an examination in each of three of the six fields of French literature listed above.
 - (2) an examination in comparative literature.
 - (3) an examination in critical theory.

The examinations are based on the student's course work and reading lists. They are administered by the student's guidance committee after the student has completed all of the courses that are required for the degree, excluding French 999.

A student who fails a written examination may retake that examination only once. A student who fails more than one written examination must retake all of the written examinations.
 8. Submit to the guidance committee within one semester after passing the comprehensive examinations a detailed prospectus of the final dissertation project and a preliminary bibliography. A description of the problems that are anticipated and the methodology that is to be employed in the project shall be included in the prospectus. The proposed final dissertation project must be acceptable to the student's guidance committee.
 9. Submit a dissertation based on original research which demonstrates a sensitivity to literary values, sound critical judgment, and mastery of subject matter.
- ## HISPANIC LITERATURES
- ### Master of Arts
- The Master of Arts degree program in Hispanic Literatures is designed primarily for students who plan to pursue a Doctor of Philosophy degree and to join the faculties of colleges or universities as scholars and teachers. The program provides study in the language, literatures, and cultures of Spain and Latin America, with an emphasis on Spanish and Spanish-American literatures and scholarly investigation.
- In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts and Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.
- ### Admission
- To be admitted to the Master of Arts degree program in Hispanic Literatures on regular status, an applicant must have:
1. A bachelor's degree in Spanish, or have completed the courses in Spanish that are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Spanish at Michigan State University or their equivalents.
 2. A grade-point average of at least 3.00 in undergraduate Spanish language and literature courses.
- ### Requirements for the Master of Arts Degree in Hispanic Literatures
- The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A minimum of 30 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the graduate adviser. The student must meet the requirements specified below:

1. Complete at least one course in each of the following fields of Spanish and Latin–American literature:
 - Medieval literature and Old Spanish language
 - 16th– and 17th–century Spanish literature
 - 18th– and 19th–century Spanish literature
 - 20th–century Spanish literature
 - Colonial Latin–American literature
 - 19th-century Latin–American literature
 - 20th-century Latin–American literature
2. Complete at least 21 credits in Spanish courses at the 800 level or above. Courses used to satisfy requirement 1. may also be used to satisfy this requirement with adviser approval.
3. Pass a written and oral examination that is based on the student's course work and the department's reading list for students who are enrolled in the Master of Arts degree in Hispanic Literatures. This examination is given only once during the Fall and Spring semesters.

With the approval of the graduate adviser, a minor field of study may be included in the requirements for the degree. Ordinarily a minor field consists of at least three graduate courses for which the student has had suitable preparation. Courses in a language other than Spanish at the 400-level, may constitute a minor field.

HISPANIC CULTURAL STUDIES

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy degree program in Hispanic Cultural Studies provides study in the literature, language and cultures of Spain and Latin America. Students will select a primary and a secondary area of emphasis, and may elect an emphasis in interdisciplinary studies, comparative literature, or Romance Languages and Literature.

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Arts & Letters, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

To be admitted to the Doctor of Philosophy in Hispanic Cultural Studies with regular status, all applicants must:

1. Possess a master's degree in Spanish or a total of 30 credit hours of approved course work beyond the bachelor's degree.
2. A grade-point average of at least 3.25 in undergraduate Spanish language, literature and culture course work.
3. Submit letters of recommendation to the Department of Romance and Classical Languages from three professionals who are familiar with their work and qualified to assess applicant's ability to pursue advanced graduate study.
4. Pass the doctoral qualifying examination in Spanish. Students who have not taken the doctoral qualifying examination in Spanish before admission to the program, may be admitted provisionally, but will be required to take the examination before the end of the first semester of enrollment. Students completing the Master of Arts in Spanish at Michigan State University will take the examination during the semester in which the master's degree is awarded. Students who fail the examination may retake it only once the next time it is offered.

Guidance Committee

Of the four regular faculty required for the guidance committee, at least three must be members of the Spanish faculty.

Requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in Hispanic Cultural Studies

1. The student must complete the following seminar courses:
 - a. ROM 800 Research Methods and Bibliography of the Romance Languages
 - ROM 870 Critical Theory
 - b. Complete an additional 18 credits in six seminar courses as specified by the student's guidance committee.
2. Demonstrate reading proficiency in two languages other than Spanish that have a body of literature or criticism relevant to the student's area of specialization.
3. Teach at least one college-level course in Spanish.
4. Pass comprehensive examinations that consist of:
 - a. A three-hour written examination in three areas relevant to Hispanic studies.
 - b. A three-hour oral examination.

The written examinations will usually focus on: 1) theory, 2) student's primary area of specialization, and 3) the student's secondary area of specialization. The oral examination will be based on two components: 1) a two-hour discussion of the written exam, and 2) a one-hour defense of the student's dissertation proposal, which must be presented within the week after passing the other exams.

These exams will be administered by the student's guidance committee after the student has completed all of the courses that are required for the degree, excluding Spanish 999.

All exams, written and oral, must be passed. A student who fails only one exam will be required to repeat that exam. If two or more exams are failed, the entire set of comprehensive examinations must be repeated and passed. A second failure of any exam terminates the candidate's study in the department.
5. Submit a detailed prospectus of the final dissertation project and a preliminary bibliography to the guidance committee within one week of passing the written examinations and the first part of the oral examination. This prospectus should include a description of critical problems to be explored and the proposed methodology; it must be approved by the student's guidance committee.
6. Submit a dissertation based on original research which demonstrates sensitivity to literary and cultural values, sound critical judgment, and mastery of subject matter.
7. Successfully defend the dissertation.

DOCTORAL EMPHASES

The following three doctoral emphases are available to students who are enrolled in the Doctor of Philosophy degree program in Spanish, language and literature.

Comparative Literature Emphasis

This emphasis involves study in the original languages of two literatures, in addition to Spanish literature. At least one of the literatures should be a non–Romance literature. Both of the two literatures and the related courses must be approved in advance by the student's guidance committee. The literatures available to students who elect this emphasis are:

Romance literatures: French and Italian.

Non-Romance literatures: American or English, Chinese, Classical Greek, German, Latin, and Russian.

Within each of the literatures, the student focuses on an area of specialization such as a literary period, theme, movement, or genre of international importance. Courses in such disciplines as history, philosophy, psychology, social and intellectual history, history of art, musicology, and linguistics may be included in the emphasis, provided that they are germane to the student's area of specialization. Study in literary criticism and theory is strongly encouraged.

Interdisciplinary Studies Emphasis

This emphasis involves study in a nonliterary cognate field outside the Department of Romance and Classical Languages that is relevant to the student's doctoral degree program. The emphasis consists of graduate courses for which the student has had suitable preparation. Courses in such areas as art, anthropology, geography, history, linguistics, music, philosophy, political science, religion, and sociology may be included in the emphasis, provided that they, together with the major, form a unified and cohesive program of study. Both the cognate field and the related courses must be approved in advance by the student's guidance committee.

For a student who elects the interdisciplinary studies emphasis:

1. at least five faculty members, including one from the student's cognate field, will serve on the student's guidance committee.
2. the five written comprehensive examinations that are required for the Doctor of Philosophy degree will be distributed as follows: two in Spanish literature, one in Spanish culture and civilization, one in Spanish language and linguistics, and one in the cognate field.

Romance Language and Literature Emphasis

This emphasis is designed to prepare the student for a scholarly and teaching career in a second language and literature. The emphasis normally consists of at least four courses. The languages and literatures available to students who elect this emphasis are French, Italian, and Latin. Both the second language and literature and the related courses must be approved in advance by the student's guidance committee.

For a student who elects the Romance language and literature emphasis:

1. at least six faculty members, including four from Spanish language and literature and two from the student's second language and literature, will serve on the student's guidance committee.
2. six, rather than five, written comprehensive examinations will be required for the Doctor of Philosophy degree. Four of the examinations will cover Spanish language and literature, and two of the examinations will cover the student's second language and literature.

DEPARTMENT of THEATRE

Frank Rutledge, Acting Chairperson

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

The purposes of this department are to offer theatrical experiences of professional caliber to the MSU student, to offer various levels of training to prepare some students for careers in theatre, and to provide opportunities for many students to perform in all aspects of this art as an expressive and social outlet. It is also the intent of the department to provoke and sustain interest in the theatre as a source of truth and insight into the human condition, to preserve and investigate further the theatre's historical traditions, and to present new plays which reflect the present condition of society.

The Bachelor of Arts degree program in Theatre has been accredited by the National Association of Schools of Theatre.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Theatre

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Theatre.
 The University's Tier II writing requirement for the Theatre major is met by completing Theatre 431. That course is referenced in item 3. a. (1) below.
2. The requirements of the College of Arts and Letters for the Bachelor of Arts degree.
 The completion of the cognate referenced in requirement 3. b. below satisfies one of the cognates required by the College. The second cognate must be in a field outside the College of Arts and Letters.
3. The following requirements for the major:

At least two History of Art courses at the 200 level (6 credits).
c. Production responsibilities: All undergraduate majors are required to participate in the various production programs of the department. Crew and performance tasks will be assigned by the department from time to time during the student's enrollment. Successful completion of these tasks is a requirement for graduation.

Production Responsibilities

All undergraduate students whose disciplinary major is theatre are required to participate in the various production programs of the department. Crew and performance tasks will be assigned by the department from time to time during the student's enrollment. Successful completion of these tasks is a requirement for graduation.

Dance Specialization

The dance specialization, which is administered by the Department of Theatre, is available as an elective to students who are enrolled in bachelor's degree programs at Michigan State University. With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, the courses that are used to satisfy the requirements for the specialization may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

The dance specialization consists of an individually prescribed block of courses designed to provide a guided academic and performance experience unique to each student's career goals. Annual performances of the Michigan State University Repertory Dance Company with guest choreographers and performers, student organized studio productions, and dance residencies with distinguished national and international companies sponsored by the Wharton Center for Performing Arts provide extensive outlets for student participation.

Students who plan to complete the requirements for the dance specialization should consult the undergraduate adviser for dance in the Department of Theatre.

Requirements for the Dance Specialization

	CREDITS
The student must complete:
1. At least 8 credits from the following courses:	8
THR 450 Movement Studio	2 or 4
THR 451 Dance Studio: Classical Forms	3 or 6
THR 452 Dance Studio: Theatrical Forms	3 or 6

THR 454 Choreography and Dance Production	3
THR 455 History of Dance to 1900	3
THR 456 History of Dance since 1900	3

Upon completion of the requirements for the dance specialization, the student should contact the Chairperson of the Department of Theatre and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the Chairperson of the Department of Theatre and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

Study And Participation In Theatre And Dance For Non-majors

Students with an avocational interest in theatre are urged to enroll in Theatre 101, 110, 211, 212, 350, and 410 and 3 credits of theatre history, and to participate in the production program of the department. Ample opportunities for experience in all phases of theatre activity are available through the Arena Theatre and the Studio 49 Theatre programs.

The Department of Theatre offers a wide variety of courses in dance for students who wish to study the art and participate as performers on an avocational basis. Courses include dance and movement studios, choreography, labanotation, history of dance, and dance production. Students are accepted into the Michigan State University Repertory Dance Company through regular auditions.

GRADUATE STUDY

The Department of Theatre offers Master of Arts and Master of Fine Arts degree programs. The programs are designed to provide advanced work for persons preparing to teach or enter professional theatre.

Department of Theatre Requirements for the Master of Arts and Master of Fine Arts Degrees

Admission

Applicants must meet the general requirements for consideration for admission to master's and doctoral degree programs in the College of Arts and Letters referenced in the College statement.

In addition, an international applicant is required to have fulfilled the University's English language proficiency requirement as described in the Graduate Education section of this catalog in one of the following three ways:

1. Have an total score of 580 (paper version) or 237 (computer version) or above on the Test of English as a Foreign Language with no subscore below 55 (paper version) or 21 (computer version) and have the approval of the English Language Center.

THR 832 Studies in Comparative Theatre and Drama	6
THR 833 Dramatic Theory and Criticism	3

Additional Requirements for Plan A

- Four credits of THR 899 Master's Thesis Research.
- Eight additional credits in courses approved by the student's guidance committee.
- Pass an oral examination in defense of the thesis.

Additional Requirements for Plan B

- Twelve additional credits in courses approved by the student's guidance committee.
- Pass a written and oral final certifying examination.

Master of Fine Arts

In addition to meeting the requirements of the University, of the College of Arts and Letters, and of the Department of Theatre, students must meet the requirements specified below.

Admission

When applying for admission to the Master of Fine Arts degree program in theatre, the applicant must specify one of the following areas of emphasis that he or she wishes to pursue: acting or production design. The audition and interview procedures for each area are as follows:

- Acting: Persons applying for admission to the Master of Fine Arts degree program with an emphasis in acting must audition in person for the MSU Acting faculty.
- Production Design: Persons applying for admission to the Master of Fine Arts degree program with an emphasis in production design must have their portfolios reviewed and be interviewed by the Design faculty.

To be admitted to the Master of Fine Arts degree program in theatre on regular status, an applicant must have a bachelor's degree in theatre or a related field from a recognized educational institution.

Guidance Committee

The student's guidance committee should be constituted by the end of the student's second semester of enrollment in the program. The committee determines an appropriate program of study in consultation with the student.

For a student who elects the acting area of emphasis, the committee must consist of two or more faculty members in the area of acting and one faculty member from outside the acting area.

For a student who selects the production design area of emphasis, the committee must consist of two faculty members in the area of design and one faculty member from outside the design area.

Requirements for the Master of Fine Arts Degree in Theatre

The program is available only under Plan B (without thesis). A total of 60 credits is required for the degree. The student's program of study must be approved by the student's guidance committee. Students must complete one of the following emphasis areas:

Acting Emphasis (60 credits):
(1) All of the following courses:
THR 402 Voice Studio	4
THR 451 Dance Studio: Classical Forms	3
THR 452 Dance Studio: Theatrical Forms	3
THR 800 Theatre Research Methodology	3

THR 833 Dramatic Theory and Criticism	3
THR 850 Portfolio Development: Digital and Traditional	2
THR 894 Special Projects in Theatre	10

Students must enroll in 2 credit increments for Theatre 894. Each 2 credits is associated with one of five required design projects reviewed and evaluated by the student's guidance committee in a timely manner. Each project designated as part of the student's program must include a production journal and appropriate visuals, i.e., renderings, models, working drawings, photographs, etc. The student's academic progress and portfolio will be reviewed at the same time.

- 18 additional credits approved by the student's guidance committee selected from the following:
 - Theatre 413, 415, 811, or 890.
 - Re-enrollment in Theatre 411, 412, or 414.
 - Courses outside the Department of Theatre appropriate to the student's program.

Transfer Credits

Transfer credits must have been completed within the time limit for the degree.

WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM

Jayne A. Schuiteman, Acting Director

The Women's Studies Program is a cross-disciplinary academic unit that is administered jointly by the College of Arts and Letters and the College of Social Science; the College of Arts and Letters is the primary administrative unit.

The Program offers a major in women's studies leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree. The major is designed to provide a liberal arts education. It focuses on the position of women in culture and society and emphasizes the intersections of gender with other social identities such as race, social class, religion, ethnicity, nationality, age, and sexual orientation. The major provides a framework for understanding theories and methods relevant to a variety of careers and professions such as journalism, business, counseling, education, publishing, health, law, and government service.

Students in other departments, schools, and colleges may select Women's Studies courses for inclusion in cognates and as electives.

Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Women's Studies

1. The University requirements for bachelor's degrees as described in the Undergraduate Education section of this catalog; 120 credits, including general elective credits, are required for the Bachelor of Arts degree in Women's Studies.

GRADUATE STUDY

INTERDISCIPLINARY GRADUATE SPECIALIZATION IN WOMEN AND GENDER

The Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender is designed for completion by either master's or doctoral students. The graduate specialization is administered by the Women's Studies Program in the College of Arts and Letters and the College of Social Science. Women's Studies collaborates with the Women and International Development Program in the College of Social Science to foster the study of women and gender across disciplines and national borders. This coordination will be of particular interest to graduate students in the departments or programs of Agricultural Economics, American Studies, Anthropology, Educational Administration, English, Family and Child Ecology, French, German, History, Journalism, Labor and Industrial Relations, Music, Nursing, Philosophy, Psychology, Romance and Classical Languages, Sociology, Social Work, Spanish, Teacher Education, and Women's Studies.

The graduate specialization in Women and Gender is designed to provide opportunities for graduate students to obtain a comprehensive, cross/interdisciplinary academic experience in women and gender and to foster the growth of interdisciplinary research and teaching on women and gender. Emphasis is given to understanding the diversity of women's lives nationally and globally.

The graduate specialization is open to graduate students with adequate undergraduate preparation in women and gender. The specialization should complement advanced, discipline-based degrees by providing an interdisciplinary, feminist component. All students are encouraged to develop competence in the foreign language most relevant to their field of work and area of interest.

Graduate students who are interested in enrolling should contact the Women's Studies Program.

With the approval of the Women and Gender Graduate Coordinating Committee, courses that are used to satisfy requirements in the student's graduate degree program may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender.

Requirements for the Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender

The student must complete 18 credits of course work distributed as follows and as approved by the Women and Gender Graduate Coordinating Committee.

1. Women's Studies 401.
2. Fourteen additional credits in courses with women and gender content selected from at least three disciplines. At least 9 credits must be at the 800-level or above. One discipline must be in a college outside the student's primary college.

A list of approved courses is maintained by the Women's Studies Program. Courses not on the list of approved courses may be acceptable for the specialization depending on specific course content.

Upon completion of the requirements for the Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender, the student should contact the Director of the Women's Studies Program and request certification for the completion of the specialization. After the certification is approved by the Director of the Women's Studies Program and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, the Office of the Registrar will enter on the student's academic record the name of the specialization and the date that it was completed. This certification will appear on the student's transcript.

THE CENTENNIAL REVIEW

Scott Michaelsen, Co-Editor

The Centennial Review, "CR," is a journal sponsored by the College of Arts and Letters and published by the Michigan State University Press. The journal's forty-fifth year of publication is 2001. It is published three times a year.

CR has a long and distinguished history of publishing interdisciplinary scholarship, including reflections on the limits of various disciplines. More particularly, the journal currently seeks theoretically driven articles on literary, cultural, social, and political topics concerning the Americas. The journals' authors and circulation are international, and it seeks to publish the best work available from both junior and established scholars.

THE CENTER FOR GREAT LAKES CULTURE

The Center for Great Lakes Culture is dedicated to understanding and interpreting the cultural history and expressions of the diverse peoples, traditions, and customs of the Great Lakes region and the region's interaction with the world. Established in 1999, the center is administered by the College of Arts and Letters, where it is well-positioned to build on the University's rich legacy of documentation on and scholarly outreach in Michigan and the Great Lakes region.

The center works with a variety of institutions dedicated to the study of the Great Lakes region and draws upon the complementary expertise and strengths of regionally focused humanities and arts organizations such as the Michigan Humanities Council. It also interacts with on-campus centers, departments, and organizations relevant to its mission including units in the College of Arts and Letters, College of Social Science, College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, MATRIX/H-Net (Humanities and Social Sciences On-Line), MSU Libraries, MSU Museum, the Canadian Studies Centre and the Consortium for Archaeological Research.

The center seeks to coordinate and expand University research and collections and to increase visibility, use, and access to these resources through research, instruction, and outreach. It strives to develop: on-line networks among the center's regional partners on- and off-campus; conferences, gatherings, and workshops, both on-site and on-line; the Distinguished Visitors Program in Great Lakes Culture; Great Lakes culture publications, resource guides, and an on-line journal; the Regional Junior Fellows Program in Great Lakes culture; accessibility to collections of the MSU Libraries and the MSU Museum; and collaborations with regional cultural institutions and media. The center also supports curricular development for K-14 and higher education through colloquia and teacher's seminars and it facilitates the development and interaction throughout the region of public programs, exhibits, and virtual networks.

A variety of Michigan State University academic departments and colleges offer programs that relate to the cultural life of the Great Lakes region. Through these degree programs, students can create cognates or areas of concentration in Great Lakes regional studies. Of particular relevance are graduate programs in the departments of Anthropology, Art, English, History, Geography, and Park, Recreation and Tourism Resources and the School of Music; programs in American Studies and Comparative Black History; and museum studies. The center also provides educational opportunities such as intensive summer institutes and workshops on Great Lakes regional culture.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE CENTER

Susan M. Gass, Director

The English Language Center was established in 1961 to provide English language instruction for those international students who need to improve their English language skills before they enroll as full-time undergraduate or graduate students at Michigan State University and for students who want to improve their English language skills without continuing their academic work at MSU. For information about the University English language proficiency requirements, refer to the statements on International Student Admission in the Undergraduate Education and Graduate Education sections of this catalog.

The Center is responsible for evaluating the English language proficiency of persons from countries where English is not the native language and for providing English language training. The evaluation and instructional services of the Center are utilized by (1) international students who have been admitted to MSU degree programs on a provisional basis due to insufficient English language proficiency, (2) persons from other countries who plan to apply for admission to MSU degree programs after they have demonstrated English language proficiency, and (3) persons from other countries who do not plan to apply for admission to MSU degree programs but who want to improve their English language skills.

The Center offers both part- and full-time English language training programs. The part-time program consists of individual courses, each of which focuses on grammar, reading, oral skills, or writing. The full-time program consists of 20 hours of course work per week and involves daily instruction integrating grammar, reading, writing, speaking, and listening.

The Center also designs and conducts special programs for groups of persons who have English language learning goals other than those normally served through the part-time and full-time English language training programs. These programs combine cultural enrichment with language training. Some programs are sponsored jointly with academic units on campus and allow students to receive training in the discipline with a simultaneous focus on language.

The Center sponsors international institutes, conferences, and symposia on second language acquisition and second language teaching, thereby serving as a focal point on campus for information about second language learning and teaching.

The Center is closely connected to the Master of Arts degree program in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages in the Department of Linguistics and Germanic, Slavic, Asian and African Languages. Students in that program have participated in the second language learning and teaching activities of the Center.

KRESGE ART MUSEUM

Susan J. Bandes, Director

Founded in 1959, Kresge Art Museum (KAM) houses MSU's fine arts collection of over 6500 objects. The museum's mission is to collect, document, preserve, exhibit and interpret works of art from diverse cultures, from the past as well as the present. Selections from the collection are on continual display to represent art from Asia, Africa, Europe, and the Americas. Holdings include photographs, paintings from the fifteenth century to the present, sculpture and mixed-media works, several video pieces, and over 3,000 drawings and prints. Strengths are in American twentieth-century art. Significant pieces are by Alexander Calder, Elizabeth Catlett, Chuck Close, Salvador Dali, Duane Hanson, Auguste Rodin, and Francisco Zurbaran.

Objects from the collection often are assigned by faculty for student research and group projects. Volunteer docents lead tours for university classes as requested. In addition to the annual Undergraduate and Master of Fine Arts exhibitions, and a biennial Faculty Exhibition, each of which is a collaboration with the Department of Art and Art History, ten changing exhibitions are shown each year, brought to campus from elsewhere or organized by museum staff. The museum often partners with other Arts and Letters departments as well as with units across campus to expand the interdisciplinary content and interpretation of exhibitions. These collaborations may involve other art forms (dance, music, theater, poetry) or broad contextualizing of the objects through history, sociology, politics and even medical issues. An expansive educational program includes lectures, gallery talks, videos and film.

KAM offers independent study for credit for undergraduates and graduates, a graduate assistantship, and a full-time internship position. Staff work with students on research projects and provide experiences for students in museum education, curation and registration, and occasionally organize history of art credit courses related to upcoming exhibitions. KAM also collaborates with the Michigan State University Museum and other academic units to offer the Specialization in Museum Studies that is administered by the Department of Art and Art History.

Apart from these curriculum-related projects, KAM provides volunteer opportunities and community-wide activities. ASPIRE, a student group in support of KAM, organizes events to introduce students to the visual arts.

Mark L. Kornbluh, Director

MATRIX is a research and teaching center dedicated to research, study, teaching, and application of new information technologies. Established in 1997, MATRIX is located within the College of Arts and Letters, yet collaborates with scholars and students across the university. MATRIX hosts a wide variety of projects and activities in five main areas: research, education, networking, development, and digital repository. MATRIX faculty, students, and academic staff are engaged in a wide range of research projects focusing on the development, preservation, and distribution of digital materials.

MATRIX's research is focused on developing the educational use of the Internet. In a wide variety of venues, the MATRIX team is exploring how to enhance the educational usefulness of the Internet and to design online resources for educational purposes. MATRIX's educational activities are five-fold. First, MATRIX faculty and staff teach graduate courses within the College of Arts and Letters in preparation of awarding a certificate in humanities technology. Second, students from across the university at all levels intern and work at MATRIX to develop their knowledge and skills in humanities technology. Third, MATRIX is building a wide variety of curricular projects both for university students and for K-12 classes. Fourth, MATRIX runs a rich portfolio of educational programs for faculty and graduate students in developing countries to familiarize them with instructional technology (IT). Fifth, MATRIX runs teaching training workshops and programs to better prepare public school teachers in this country to utilize online resources.

In addition to research and education, MATRIX is involved in a wide range of IT for development projects, particularly in Africa. The aim of these activities is to harness new technology to support democracy and development in countries with the greatest needs. As host to H-Net: Humanities and Social Sciences On-Line, MichiganCultureNet, the Michigan Writers Network and several smaller networks, MATRIX is an international hub of networking for the humanities and social sciences. MATRIX's servers send out more than 500,000 pieces of email a day tying together scholars, teachers, humanists, and others around the globe. This networking ties into MATRIX's rich portfolio of digital repository resources that are growing daily in size and use. The largest of these, the National Gallery of the Spoken Word, is funded under the National Digital Library Initiative II to explore all aspects involved in digitizing, storing, and making use of aural resources on the Internet. For additional information, visit MATRIX's website at: www.matrix.msu.edu.
