

Adaptable Resolution Process

Explore your options

Meet with a trained AR Facilitator to determine whether AR is appropriate. During the meeting, questions can be asked, concerns discussed, and available options explored.

AR Procedures

The AR facilitator will guide the parties through the process and assist in working toward a resolution. Any resolution must be agreed upon by all parties and MSU, and it becomes effective only when documented in writing. Any party may withdraw from AR at any time before the resolution takes effect.

Request to learn more about AR

Anyone involved in a report of misconduct can request more info about the AR process through OCR. No commitment required. OCR reviews the matter to determine if AR is appropriate and permitted under policy.

Initiation of AR process

Once a signed formal complaint is submitted and all parties provide written consent to proceed with AR, each party will be notified that the AR process has begun.

Monitoring

OCR will monitor the agreement and follow-up with the parties. If the agreed-upon actions are not completed, it may result in further university action or discipline.
