SUPPORT DURING AND AFTER A DISCLOSURE

Knowing how to support someone can make a big difference to those who have experienced past or current relationship violence, stalking, and/or sexual misconduct. Below are some tips to support someone if they disclose abuse:

BE TRANSPARENT

Tell students and/or colleagues if you are a responsible employee. Ideas may be: including this in your syllabus or talking about it at a staff meeting.

REFLECT THE PERSON'S LANGUAGE

Be supportive. Mirror the other person's language so they are defining their own experiences.

DON'T OVERSTEP

It's important to remember your role. Refrain from asking for details or giving unwanted advice. Leave it to the professionals on campus to investigate cases. Your role is to support the survivor and offer a message of belief.

ASK OPEN-ENDED QUESTIONS

Avoid "why" questions. Asking "why" questions can leave someone feeling blamed and overwhelmed. Instead try asking, "What do you need?" or "How can I help?"

CONNECT TO RESOURCES

Offer confidential resources to the survivor (review page 4).

EXAMPLES OF HELPFUL THINGS TO SAY:

I SUPPORT
YOU

IT'S NOT YOUR FAULT

HOW CAN I HELP?

I AM SORRY
THAT HAPPENED
TO YOU
