Current Responsibility

Tony Burke is a principal and consulting actuary with the Atlantic Region Property-Casualty practice of Milliman. He joined the firm in 1989.

Professional Work Experience

Tony has managed a wide variety of property and casualty consulting assignments, including reserve analyses, pricing analyses, loss projections, feasibility studies, and risk transfer analyses. He has provided actuarial consulting services to multiline property and casualty insurers, captive insurers, risk retention groups, self-insured corporations, self-insured groups, program managers, reinsurers, and state insurance departments. He has served as the appointed actuary for many insurance entities.

Prior to joining Milliman, Tony spent four years in the actuarial department of a Massachusetts-based insurer. During that time, he was actively involved in the pricing activities of commercial and personal lines of insurance.
