

DAVID CLOVE

Senior Product Analyst, Strategic Product Management

david.clove@milliman.com

Current Responsibility

David Clove is a senior product analyst on the Strategic Product Management team, leveraging experience in data analytics, research methodologies, policy development and communication, and strategic planning to translate evolving market needs into organizational strategy. He currently works on the Milliman Network Optimizer product, helping clients improve network access and adequacy.

Professional Work Experience

David has held a range of roles that span research and analytics, policy analysis, and strategic consulting. His current focus at Milliman is on product strategy, data-driven insights, and client-facing solutions. In this role, he facilitates new product development, with a current focus on provider network analytics.

Previously, David worked on reference data products and chronic condition identification, using a blend of research and analytics expertise. Prior to his time at Milliman, David worked as a political consultant, focusing primarily on policy development and campaign strategy.

Education

BA, Political Science, Brigham Young University

Presentations and Publications

Provider Participation in APMs (Milliman Health Forum 2023)

Using social impact bonds to fund type 2 diabetes prevention