Digging without calling 811
is risky business.

Let's improve your odds –
Call Before You Dig!

What's the risk?

When you dig around buried facilities, you may damage them and at a minimum, cause a disruption of important services. Telephone, electric and gas service can be interrupted; and it takes time and money to make emergency repairs. Worse than that, there is a human risk that hitting a pipeline can injure or kill people. Substantial property damage can result from careless excavation activities. Damage to the environment can also be the result.
