Zurich's range of life insurance through the netwealth platform

First month's premium waived

When it comes to making cover more affordable, Zurich has another ace up its sleeve. Every policy you write through netwealth which goes into force will have the first month's premium waived.

That's right, one whole month. (Of course you'll still be paid commission on the entire yearly premium amount).

How does it work?

Zurich's Wealth Protection product suite is available via netwealth to provide protection solutions inside of super with the convenience of administration and premium deductions via the netwealth platform.

Types of Zurich cover available via the netwealth platform:

- Death cover
- Total & permanent disablement (TPD) cover (any occupation, domestic duties or modified TPD definitions)
- Income protection (indemnity cover)

Types of cover available to the life insured with Superannuation optimiser (explained on the next page):

- Trauma cover
- Total & permanent disablement (TPD) cover (own occupation)
- Income protection (agreed value)

Transfers into netwealth

To transfer an existing Zurich retail insurance policy into the netwealth arrangement without underwriting, complete the "Transfer of existing policy to platform (super)" form.

Superannuation optimiser

If you wish to hold as much of your cover as possible in super (via the platform), but you still wish to access benefits which cannot be held in super, superannuation optimiser could be the solution. Superannuation optimiser allows you to split your cover so that it is held across two policies. One policy is issued to a trustee of a superannuation fund via the platform while the other is issued to the life insured (or other entity who is not a trustee of a superannuation fund.) This enables you to hold those benefits that comply with a superannuation condition of release within superannuation and the remainder outside of superannuation. More information about superannuation optimiser can be found in the PDS.
