Achievements

Working with research partners to understand variations of children and young people's mental health (CYPMH) across the country.	FUTURE	Develop an approach to mental health through education that will transform the mental health of the next generation.
	PLANS PLANS
Influencing the scope of government policy to transform CYPMH, with a focus on schools.	2017	Provided evidence to Parliamentary committee's inquiry into CYPMH and
	2017	the role of education.
CYPMH plans and hosts national seminars focusing on topical CYPMH issues.		Influencing government policy to encourage statutory PSHE.
	2047
Joint sponsors of the 'Values-Based Child and Adolescent Mental Health System Commission', identifying key values to be adopted by those working in the CYPMH system.	2016	Professor Dame Sue Bailey chairs the first schools -led Commission on pupils' mental health - Healthy MindED (SCHOOLS NorthEast), who
, , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,	2015	have adopted a values and evidence based approach.
CYPMHC actively influences "Future in Mind" leading to £1.25 billion in funding to improve children and young people's mental health.	2014	CYPMHC lobbying prompts Government to commission "prevalence survey".
Published a framework to guide a whole school approach in partnership with Public Health England, disseminated across schools, teaching unions and public	2013	Audit of commissioning landscape "Overlooked and forgotten", prompts local reviews of young people's mental health needs and better priority setting.
health teams.
Published"Resilience and Results" guide on how to improve emotional and mental wellbeing of children and young people in schools.	2012	Our lobbying ensures that the new 'no health without mental health', includes children and young people.
IAPT, originally an adult only programme, extends to include children and young people and then leverages funds to create MindEd.	2010	CYPMHC meets Minister for Mental Health, Paul Burstow - prompts Government to give greater priority to children and young people's mental health.